Crane, Mikva Not Worried About Nader's Lawmaker Profiles

by JAMES VESELY

The Ralph Nader report on member of Congress, the long-awaited profile of incumbent lawmakers undertaken by the nation's chief executioner of sacred cows, came to light over the weekend following what Nader aides say reflects months of research and writing.

The result is more a compilation of information than an evaluation, and initial reaction from Northwest suburban Congressmen Philip Crane and Abner Mikva is that there is nothing to worry about.

Both Crane and Mikva told the Herald thye considered the reporting by Nader's staff to be generally accurate and, despite minor discrepancies, reflective of the voting patterns and attitudes of both congressmen.

Nader project reports on individual congressmen were released to the press last Wednesday but were embargoed until Saturday evening.

Profiles of each Congressman or Senator were compiled over a period of several months, including some three to four weeks of writing time. The reports range between 16 to 24 pages and delve into the voting records, attendance records, voting patterns, personalities and family history of incumbent members of Congress.

The Nader reports do not concern themselves with the opponents of incumbent lawmakers and so do not mention challengers Ed Frank in the 12th District and candidate Sam Young in the newly drawn 10th District.

The reports:

PHILIP CRANE(R)

Rep. Philip Crane

Abner Mikva

Crane is characterized in the Nader report as a staunch conservative who is enough of an idealogue to vote against majority opinions consistently and who can frequently be found among the handful of Congressmen who vote no on issues they see as challenges to conservative viewpoints.

Nader's researchers used material from Chicago area newspapers and from his voting record to draw a picture of a Congressman unequivocally opposed to most social and fiscal legislation as proposed by urban-oriented or liberal colleagues.

From the report:

"Crane voted with the conservative coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats 83 per cent of the time in 1971. Average Republican support was 70 per cent. He voted with the Administration only 60 per cent of the time in 1971, compared to a Republican average of 72 per cent. Representative Crane received 1971 ratings of 96 per cent from the conservative Americans for Constitutional Action and 14 per cent from liberal Americans for Democratic Action.

". . . Crane has opposed all major anti-war bills in the last two years. He voted against prohibiting involuntary assignment of draftees to Indochina after 1971 . . . he voted not to require the Secretary of State to furnish Congress with information on U.S. operations in Laos. He voted against a proposal to cut off funds for the war after June 1, 1972 subject to the release of the prisoners of war."

As the report points out, Crane opposes the draft, is generally in favor of military spending, believes the country is

Mary Hannon Appointed To School Board

No newcomer to the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education, Mary (Bonnie) Hannon, a former board member, was appointed to a vacant board seat Thursday, replacing Gerald Lewin.

Mrs. Hannon, 36, of 1407 Hampton Ln., Schaumburg, served on the board as an appointee in August of 1968 until her election to a three-year term in April of 1969.

Her term expired last April and she chose not to run for reelection.

Along with four other aspirants, Mrs. Hannon met with board members for a private interview in an executive session deliberation during Thursday's school board meeting.

Others interviewed were Connie Schoeld, 674 Parkview Ln., Hoffman Estates; Edward Mozal, 1103 Lowell Ln., Schaumburg; Mary Lou Ghannam, 365 Newport Rd., Hoffman Estates, and Marilee Halpin, 111 Brixham Pl., Schaumburg.

Mrs. Hannon said she plans to run for reelection this April and added that she greatly missed serving on the board since her term expired.

"I miss the challenge," she said.

"The fact that five people were interested in applying for appointment is a good sign for this April's school board election," she added.

MRS. HANNON said she is interested in creating a better understanding between board and people in the district. "I would like to work for an exchange of information between residents and board," she said.

"I am also concerned about Gov. Richard Ogilvie's proposal to freeze local tax levies. This could be disastrous to our school district and the only way we could survive would be to cut services; an impossible task." she added.

A graduate of Northeastern Illinois State Teachers College, she holds a bachelor's degree in education.

As a former member of the board she served as secretary and representative of the Northwest Education Cooperative.

Eye Terada Park Planting

Schaumburg Park District personnel have promised that efforts to initiate phase I planting at Terada Park will be made this fall.

At a Saturday meeting with representatives of the village Clean Environment Committee (CEC) and residents living adjacent to the park, Paul Derda, director of parks and recreation, indicated that plans will be finalized early this week.

Formal park board approval of plans is expected in the near future Derda said.

The park district has agreed to purchase and plant mature type trees and shrubs for the park, located south of Schaumburg Road, between Salem and Grand Central drives.

Estimated cost of phase I planting is $1,915. In addition to new plantings, a number of trees and shrubs at the site will be rearranged.

PHASE II is expected to run $1,271 and the final area cost is projected at $735. The entire project is planned for completion in 1973.

Park officials have pointed out, however, that these costs include purchase and planting of trees and shrubs. Gravel roads, bird feeders, benches and other items planned for placement at the park are not included in these estimates.

In a joint environmental project with Hoffman Estates last spring, CEC mem-

Report UFO Spotted In Schaumburg Area

Schaumburg police received the report of an unidentified flying object spotted in the village late last week.

Mrs. Gertraud Broz, 1928 Wayland Ct., told police she saw a bright orange circular object while driving westbound on Schaumburg Road about 3:30 a.m. She said the object grew larger as she approached Braintree Lane.

Mrs. Broz reported the object had what appeared to be a large red light on one side which flashed on and off. She discounted the possibility of the object being a plane, however.

She said the object disappeared in the northwest sky when she reached Walnut Lane.

Police said they did not plan to call in the Air Force or any other outside law enforcement unit to investigate at this time. No other sightings were reported to the police.

Form Task Force To Improve Adult Education

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — State Superintendent of Public Instruction Michael J. Bakalis Friday announced formation of a task force to study ways of improving the adult education program in Illinois.

Bakalis told members of the Public Adult and Continuing Education Association of Illinois the 1970 state constitution requires the state to provide for the "educational development of all persons to the limit of their capabilities."

"That proviso," Bakalis said, "was intended to apply with equal force to those educable persons who suffer from either physical handicaps or mental deficiencies.

"It is also intended to apply to adults who, in countless instances, need, deserve and can obviously profit from expanded educational opportunities."

Bakalis said the task force willl develop a strategy to govern adult education and present recommendations for legislation to him and the legislature.

Butchers, Grocery Chains Reach Settlement

It's Official: No Meat Buying After 6

It's official.

Shoppers will not be able to buy fresh meat at grocery stores in the Cook County area after 6 p.m. or on Sundays, nor will butchers work those hours.

These matters were settled last week when officials of both the major grocery chains and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North Americal Local 546 hammered out a contract settlement.

Terms were agreed to on a new one-year contract. The old contract expired at the end of September and butchers were working under a 60-day retroactive clause in that pact.

THE NEW contract, agreed upon by all the grocery chains after an attempt by Jewel, Dominicks and Mayflower to negotiate a seperate agreement, includes a $10-per-week across-the-board increase for all butchers based on a 40-hour week.

Also included in the contract was a 10-cent increase for part time workers, an $8.70 increase in pension contributions made by the chains, bringing the total put in to $245 per month, and increases in health and welfare contributions, the details of which have not yet been worked out.

The settlement ended two months of negotiation and speculation that for the first time in the union's history fresh, red meat would be sold at heretofore prohibitive hours.

Public opinion came to play and for the first time in its history the union polled its rank-and-file members on the specific subject of working the later hours.

Results of that poll showed that the rank and file was overwhelmingly against the change in hours. By a vote of 3,219 to 865, a margin of almost 4-to-1, union members voiced their opposition to the idea, ultimately instructing their leaders to continue negotiating the new contract without the hours provision.

In a letter mailed to each of the 10,000 union members telling them the results of the poll, union secretary-treasurer R. Emmett Kelly told of the union's solid position on the matter and blamed shoppers, and news media and fellow union members for distorting the facts and making the issue a controversial one.

Friday, union president Robert J. Kennedy showed signs of relief that the contract had been settled and said, 'everyone is inconvenienced at one time or another. We all have that problem. Take it easy on us next year."

Good Building Probers Needed

by MARILYN HEISER

Government at its best acts before a large problem exists. A government that acts rather than simply reacts is one to be commended.

The move by Hoffman Estates officials to urge introduction of state legislation requiring the certification and licensing of building inspectors is a case in point.

A recent Herald investigation of building department size indicated it will be necessary to increase the number of inspectors throughout the area to keep pace with the enormous amount of construction.

As more inspectors are hired, it is important they be of a high caliber. Numbers are not enough. Quality is also a criterion.

SOME INSPECTORS in area villages presently seem capable of spotting building code violations. Inspectors in Hoffman Estates recently spotted the use of an improper cement mix in an apartment development and halted construction.

If these inspectors had not been properly qualified, they might have overlooked the error. A cement floor incapable of withstanding enough weight could have been installed.

Richard Regan, chairman of the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission, Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, and Building Commissioner Dan Murphy are urging the legislation.

As Regan said, an inspector does not need a college degree. The legislation would simply insure the capability of persons entrusted with checking structures for safety and quality.

Legislation similar to this has been proposed before and killed in committee. Hopefully, this new legislation will get past the lobbying of special interest groups.

As Regan pointed out, builders would also benefit from quality inspection. They are liable if one of their buildings is of substandard quality or responsible for an accident.

GRANDPA'S FLAG should fly on Veteran's Day, decided Blackhawk School third grader Kimberly Wheeler of Hoffman Estates So Kimberly, the first granddaughter of deceased World War II veteran, James Leroy Bell and her grandmother Mrs. Jeanett Bell of Peoria, presented his flag to the school. Custodian Dave Manghue ran the flag up Friday during a Veteran's Day ceremony at the school.

A Shortcut For Toll Ramp?

Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg officials may have found a shortcut in their campaign to convince the Illinois Tollway Authority of the need for a interchange on the Northwest Tollway at Roselle Road.

Hoffman Estates Public Works Supt. John Hossack said at a meeting with representatives of the tollway authority last week, it was learned that certain data used in a traffic study of the area had been obtained in an earlier study made by the tollway authority.

The data was collected several years ago when a proposal was made for the interchange constructed at Arlington Heights Road.

Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg officials have been working for more than a year to conduct a study of the amount of use an interchange at Roselle Road might receive.

IF THE TOLLWAY'S consultants can locate the raw data collected in connection with the Arlington Heights project, Hossack said it might save the two villages a lot of effort.

Village officials hope to use the data collected to persuade the tollway authority of the need for the interchange.

Hossack said the tollway authority would then be required to conduct a more comprehensive effort to determine if the interchange would produce enough revenue to pay for itself.

Local officials also were informed that the tollway authority is in the process of determining the long-range capacity of the highways. These studies might also be used to determine the need for an interchange at Roselle Road, Hossack said.

Overturned Tanker Spills 1,000 Gallons Of Gasoline

A section of Ill. Rte. 72 just west of Arlington Heights Road in Elk Grove Village was closed Friday night and Saturday morning after a tanker overturned and spilled 1,000 gallons of gasoline onto the roadway.

Illinois State Police said the truck overturned shortly before 8 p.m. Friday after it was struck by a car which apparently turned in front of the tanker. The accident occurred in Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Schaumburg, Arlington Heights, Bensenville and Mount Prospect firemen assisted as Elk Grove Village Fire Department sprayed foam on the fuel to prevent ignition. Groups of Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts in the woods were moved to a safer area, according to Elk Grove Fire Chief Allen Hulett.

POLICE SAID Raybold Budde, 35, of Dalton, the truck driver, sustained minor injuries but refused treatment. Thomas Levenhagen, 41, of Chicago, who was driving the car, was charged with failure to yield the right of way, police said. No one in the car was injured.

Hulett said he ordered the road opened at 2 p.m. Saturday after the spilled fuel "had been washed down sufficiently by the rain." Firemen had to pump out nearly 6,500 gallons of gasoline still in the overturned truck, owned by Frank Siber of Alsip, before they could right the vehicle, Hulett said. The gasoline was pumped into a Standard Oil Co. tanker.

Hulett said if the fuel had ignited, a large explosion could have occurred. "That gas would have ignited without the foam, the rain, luck, and a lot of guts," he said.

Jack Ryon Raps Palatine Blood Plan

The decision of Palatine officials to sponsor a village-wide blood drive in conjunction with the American Red Cross has touched off a controversy over a possible shortage of blood at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

A spokesman for the hospital, Jack Ryon, says that a shortage could force the hospital to obtain blood from outside the suburban area.

And that in turn, he says, could lead to the use of blood of questionable quality, thus jeopardizing all of the patients who need a transfusion.

Richard A. Dawson, the Palatine environmental health director, counters that he finds "objectionable" the philosophy that blood donated by suburban residents remains in a suburban blood bank, where the hospital draws its blood supply.

He feels that donated blood should be used wherever it is most needed, and that the Red Cross, not a suburban blood bank, can fulfill that need.

RYON'S FEAR IS that by Palatine residents giving blood to the Red Cross rather than to the North Suburban Blood Center, a potentially large source of blood that the hospital counts on would be drained.

At the same time, he says, Palatine residents will continue to depend on the hospital to fulfill their blood needs, thus depleting the hospital's supply.

Ryon points out that Palatine residents are the second biggest user of Northwest Community Hospital, constituting 16 per cent of its patients.

"We're not worried about small blood drives in offices or schools," he said. "But Palatine may be big enough to have an effect on us" and diverting Palatine blood to the Red Cross "could create a serious shortage" at Northwest.

If 4 per cent of the Palatine residents donate a pint of blood each to the Red Cross, the total donation would be more than 1,000 pints.

That along would have an adverse effect on the hospital, but what concerns Ryon more is the loss of a potential 26,000 donors.

Half of the hospital's blood supply is obtained by relatives of patients replacing the amount used by the patient.

IF 4 PER CENT OF the 26,000 Palatine residents donates a pint of blood, everyone in the village is guaranteed as much blood as he needs for a year. And that, Ryon says, eliminates any motivation for potential donors — "the ability to get Palatine residents to come over and cover their relative's account with a pint of blood."

Meanwhile, "The Red Cross takes that Palatine blood downtown and gives it to Michael Reese, Henrotin, Cook County and other Chicago hospitals," Ryon said. "Where is the blood for Palatine residents going to come from?"

For every pint of blood Northwest Community Hospital would put into the veins of a Palatine resident, it would receive a credit from the Red Cross for either a matching amount of blood or $15 per pint.

The hospital does not want the Red Cross blood.

"We have no way of knowing what the historical background of that blood is," Ryon said. "We're not assured of getting Palatine blood.

"Our doctors want the best possible blood available for their patients, and the best possible blood certainly would be blood drawn locally."

THE REASON, HE said, is that suburban residents are healthier than inner city residents, and thus are less likely to transmit infection through their blood.

The alternative to accepting Red Cross blood — taking the $15 and purchasing donated blood elsewhere — is preferable, Ryon said, but the North Suburban Blood Center is dependent on hospitals such as Northwest to provide much of its supply, and it could encounter a shortage if other communities divert blood to the Red Cross.

The City of Rolling Meadows is considering joining the Red Cross program, which also could adversely effect the hospital's supply, though not as much because the city is not as large as Palatine.

Ryon said that a similar 4 per cent donor program sponsored by the North Suburban Blood Center, which is being considered by the Village of Arlington Heights, could remove the incentive of residents to donate blood to the hospital.

"But in that case, at least we would get the 4 per cent that's donated," he said, "and it would be local blood."

Health director Dawson says he recommended that the Village of Palatine associate itself with the Red Cross, rather than the North Suburban Blood Center, because "the American Red Cross is better equipped to handle a community blood drive.

OTHER BLOOD BANKS could handle a small donor program, by a church or an office, Dawson said, "but when it comes down to the nitty-gritty, they don't have the number of mobile units and organization that you need when you go into a community blood program."

He also criticized the North Suburban concept of obtaining and using blood. "The big pitch is you keep suburban blood in the suburbs.

"What objection is there to taking suburban blood into the city to fill the inner city blood needs?"

As far as replacing blood used at Northwest Community Hospital with blood obtained by the Red Cross: "The processing to insure that the blood is high quality is the same by all blood agencies," he said.

Processing can check only 70 to 80 per cent of the blood sample anyway, Dawson says. "Granted, the paid donor is a less desirable physical specimen and may be looking for a dollar to buy a bottle of wine — he's more likely to have hepatitis.

"But not donor blood (where the donor is not paid)."

"I'll take an Arlington Heights man's blood any day, or a Chicago man's blood. The thing I'm concerned about is that it's donated blood."

Dawson said Northwest Community Hospital's concern is "the patient."

And that concern, he said, "isn't any different from the Red Cross' concern."

Village Leads In Home Starts

Schaumburg leads the metropolitan area in the number of new homes started through September of this year. The village reported 1,133 new home starts.

The City of Chicago followed Schaumburg with 1,099 homes started. Last year Chicago topped Schaumburg with permits issued for 1,947 homes compared to the village's 1,034.

All figure quoted are from the survey of building done by Bell Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Permits for all construction also indicate Schaumburg leads the other suburbs in dollar volume. Schaumburg reports $19.8 million in construction. Oak Lawn, reporting $5.26 million, is the closest competitor, with Hoffman Estates, $3.6 million, and Wheeling, $3.07 million, third and fourth.

Chicago reports the highest amount of dollar volume with $51.9 million in total construction.

In number of apartment permits issued in September, Schaumburg also leads the metropolitan area with 495. Woodridge is second with 304, and Hoffman Estates third with 238. Chicago reports 87 apartment permits issued.

Eye Terada Park Planting

bers supervised planting of about 2,000 seedlings, young bushes, and grasses at Terada Park.

Several months later, a large number of the plantings were destroyed when park district personnel mowed the site.

Terada Park became a bone of contention between area residents, CEC and the park district last summer, when it was noted as a prime breeding place for mosquitos.

Residents, park district representatives and CEC have been working toward a mutual solution of problems at the site over the last several months.

All parties concerned agreed Saturday that new plans for developing the area as a strictly passive recreation site are acceptable.

DERDA ALSO told persons living adjacent to the park that one area at the site is under consideration as a possible location for a park district maintenance building.

He stressed, however, that the building being discussed would be an architectural companion to Meinecke Community Center which now houses park offices.

While he stressed that the maintenance building could become an asset to the park, Derda made it clear that Terada Park is one of several park areas under consideration for the building.

Community Service Has An Unusual Mix Of Counselors

by FRED GACA

It is an unusual combination of people; Dr. Charles Turk, psychiatrist; Rick and Diane Bloom, husband and wife team; Bill Brauer, former Presbyterian minister; and John Roadhouse, former lawyer. Together they make up the recently hired staff at Elk Grove Village Community Service.

Dr. Turk, the Blooms, and Brauer were hired in August under a special $52,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Mental Health. The grant permits Community Service to expand its operations to provide mental health care to Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships.

Roadhouse was hired in June to fill a position created when his brother left Community Service.

The Blooms, Brauer, and Roadhouse are full-time staff counselors and social workers. Dr. Turk will work part-time. They will work out of the Community Service farmhouse on Biesterfield Road.

JORDAN ROSEN, executive director of Community Service, said, "We are very fortunate to have such a variety of backgrounds and personalities on the staff. It will enable us to serve our clients better."

Dr. Turk is a long-time resident of the Northwest suburbs. He graduated from Arlington Heights Township High School in 1954. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Miami, Oxford, Ohio, in 1958 and his medical degree from Western Reserve University, Cleveland, in 1962.

Dr. Turk did not plan to become a psychiatrist when he entered medical school, but he gradually became interested in the field.

"I toyed with the idea of psychiatry as a medical student," said Dr. Turk. As an intern he became concerned with, as he put it, "the total problems of the patient. They would get better physically, only to go back to something that pained them."

HE DECIDED to become a psychiatrist after he himself received help for personal problems through counseling and therapy.

Rick and Diane Bloom plan to do cotherapy at Community Service. In cotherapy, two therapists work together on a single case.

Co-therapy can present serious problems if the therapists do not agree on the counseling a client should receive, but Rick predicts he and Diane will not have this problem:

"We have never seriously disagreed on a case. We had similar training and backgrounds. We were under the same therapist at the same school. Much of our relationship is based on our work. We enjoy working together.

The couple has been married for almost two years. They met while they were both graduate students at the University of Chicago, where they both received master's degrees last December.

AFTER THEY graduated, Rick and Diane worked for six months in a Los Angeles center for juvenile delinquents, emotionally disturbed and mentally handicapped youths.

They left Los Angeles because they found work at the center frustrating: "Treatment wasn't voluntary. "We didn't have the families willing to come in for counseling."

"The instruction within the institute was very rigid and the work was draining," said Rick. "They were very self-destructive kids."

Bill Brauer entered social work through the church door. He was ordained as a Presbyterian minister in 1968 after completing his studies at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. He worked as a minister for two years in a church on Chicago's west side.

THROUGH HIS church work he became involved in various social programs. He worked for one year with the Garfield Organization, citizens' action group on the west side of Chicago. He also taught at Malcolm X College for one year.

"The ministry was a misguided attempt to do what I am doing now," said Brauer. As a minister, he found church regulations too confining to do social work.

Brauer has given up his ministry duties completely to devote his time to social work and therapy.

John Roadhouse first thought he wanted to be a lawyer. He became an attorney in 1967, practicing in Cambridge, Mass.

AS AN ATTORNEY, he worked in family law, juvenile law and domestic relations. He often served as a defender in juvenile cases.

"I found myself doing more and more counseling work. I was more interested in the emotional consequences of people's conflicts than the legal consequences," said Roadhouse.

He decided to get formal training in therapy since he felt he would be, "more important as a social worker than a lawyer — and there are restrictions on a lawyer trying to do social work."

Roadhouse attended the Boston Family Institute for two years before starting work at Community Service.

His break with the legal profession has been complete. If any of his clients have a legal problem or question, "I refer them to legal service or a lawyer," said Roadhouse.

Miss Blanco: Dazed, I'm Dreaming...

Arthur Holper, Roselle.

Miss Blanco, who was first runner-up in the 1972 pageant, received a $500 scholarship as the 1973 queen. In the talent competition, she performed gymnastics on the uneven parallel bars.

"Dazed, I'm dreaming," said the new Miss Hoffman Estates tearfully at the close of the ninth annual pageant sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Jaycees.

Other awards she received were the use of a 1973 Dodge for a year, contributed by Roselle Dodge, 100 gallons of gasoline from Redmon's Arco, wardrobe for the Miss Illinois Pageant from Paddors, Woodfield, an all expense trip to the Miss Illinois Pageant, gift certificate from the Lual Shop, and dinner for two at Hilldale Restaurant.

MISS SORENSEN received a $75 savings bond from Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates, trophy, and gift certificate as first runner-up. As Miss Congeniality, she received $25 from First Savings and Loan Association of Schaumburg and a trophy.

Miss Holper received a $25 savings bond from Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates, gift certificate, and trophy.

A Peter, Paul and Mary song, "Love," waas Miss Sorensen's offering in the talent competition, and Miss Holper gave a comic monologue.

Miss Holly Thorsen, the 1972 Miss Hoffman Estates, sang several songs, before giving up her crown. The J. B. Conant Stage Band accompanied her along with playing several production numbers.

Other finalists in the pagent were Miss Valerie Kay Gast, 20, Miss Deborah Kay Hill, 18, Miss Linda Joyce Long, 19, Miss Donna Marici, 17, Miss Kathleen A. Nytko, 18, and Miss Celeste Marie Skotnick, 17.

The mistress of ceremonies for this year's pageant was Dulcie Scripture, Miss Illinois, 1969.

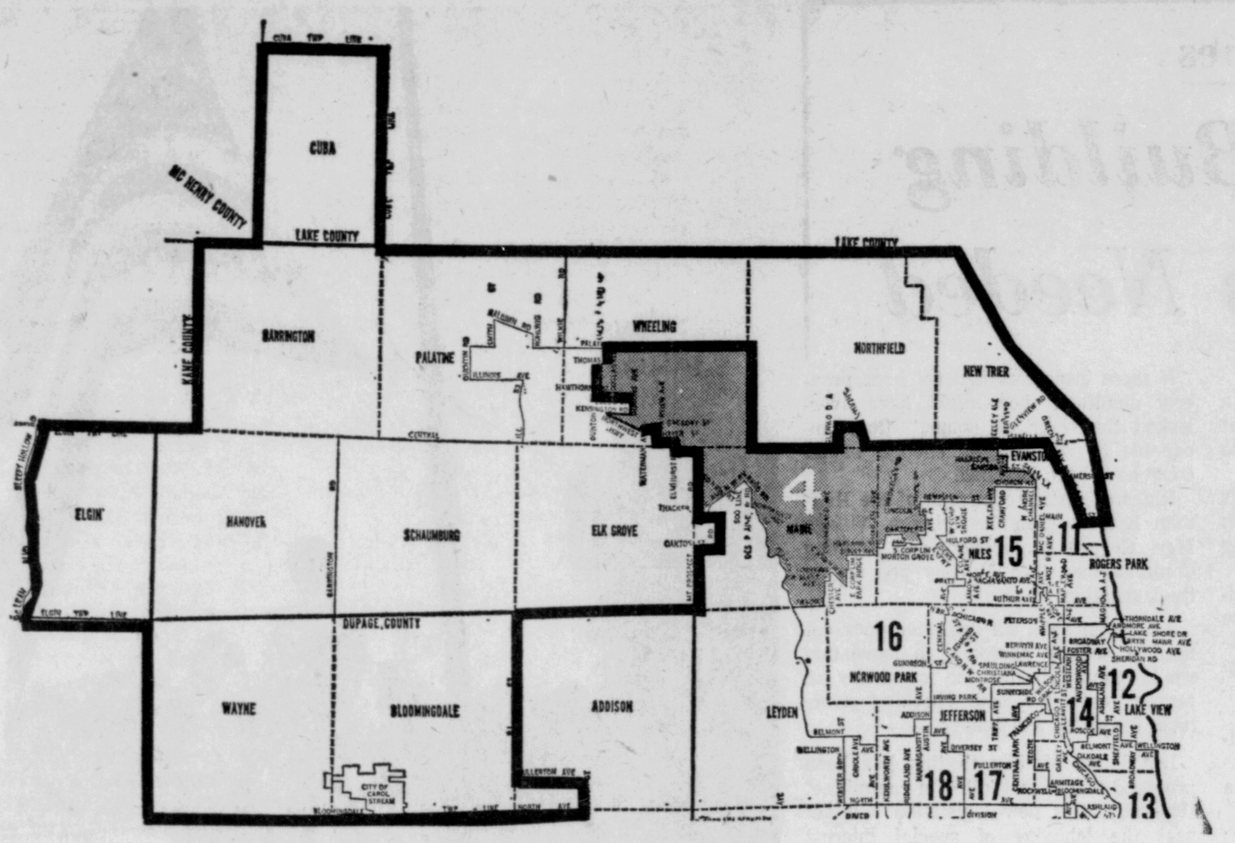
4th District House: The Republicans



The gerrymandered 4th Illinois House District has two incumbent Republican representatives who are seeking reelection to their seats in the Legislature. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights and Robert Juckett of Park Ridge are both different brands of Republicans who nevertheless find themselves sharing the same district and seeking election on the same ticket.

Schlickman has a long history of involvement with local politics and is perhaps best known now for his authorship of the various aid to non-public schools measures offered in Springfield. Juckett is a conservative Republican with strong ties to township government.

Eugene F. Schlickman

Eugene Schlickman:

Quietly Confident As Usual, But Things Are Different Now . . .

by BOB LAHEY

Gene Schlickman knows this road well.

He has been down it many times before, the coffees, the handshaking, the interviews, the controversies.

Maybe especially the controversies. Some of his friends say he has a penchant for getting into sticky situations.

Parochiaid. State and regional concepts of zoning and planning.

Those who are interested in his political career wince when he takes on the chief sponsorship of legislation to provide public aid to parochial schools. Or when he talks about strengthening the zoning influence of the Northern Illinois Plan Commission, anathema to many local politicians.

These are the kinds of issues that make him unpopular with some of his Springfield colleagues.

THERE IS EVIDENCE that a certain abrasiveness, and some of his legislative stands, was responsible for the House Republican leadership agreeing to carve up his comfortable legislative district. Reapportionment left him in a district with barely 20 per cent of the safe area where he has been elected four times.

Then there was his declaration that the leaders of his party, President Nixon and Gov. Ogilvie, had made a deal with Mayor Daley to hold off support of Sen. McGovern in return for future federal favors.

It infuriated his enemies and disturbed his friends.

But that sort of thing has happened before, and Gene Schlickman has been elected four times.

It's different this time. His new district has only a piece of his home territory in Arlington Heights. To the east, it is the territory of two other incumbents, fellow Republican Robert Juckett of Park Ridge and Democrat Aaron Jaffe of Skokie, and the latecomer to the campaign, former Democratic legislator Ed Warman of Skokie.

Juckett and Schlickman are not known as close friends, but in this election where many feel that two Democrats could be elected, they are at least going through the motions of sharing campaign literature in a united Republican front.

THERE IS the question of whether Gene Schlickman can outpoll one or the other Democratic candidate. "If I can keep Juckett running with me (getting a somewhat even split on what should be a higher Republican vote), and if Jaffe bullets (succeeds in getting three cumulative votes from his supporters, cutting into Democrat Warman's total), I'm OK."

"If the two Democrats run even and Juckett bullets, I'm in trouble."

You can't escape the feeling that if he's "in trouble," well, that's just the way it is going to have to be as far as Gene Schlickman is concerned.

There still are things he wants to do in Springfield. But talk about what concerns him today, at the age of 42, and he will mention his law practice, his two sons in college, and the question of whether 13 years in politics, starting as a village trustee, might not be enough.

"I desire to go back to Springfield," he says, and he has faithfully followed the long grind of the coffees and the "candidates' nights." But, he points out, there still is a $10,000 debt from his bid for Congress in 1969 that must be paid off.

And in his office, he has a chart showing how his law practice suffers when he is in the midst of a political campaign, and how it blooms when he gets time to devote all of his time to it.

BUT GENE Schlickman wants to go back to Springfield and in the meantime he still isn't ducking the controversies.

"Flooding," he declares, "is everybody's fault — including the homeowner, for selecting a house on a flood plain. It is the fault of public officials for refusing to be conscious of the need for planning."

But essentially, the responsibility lies with public officials, he emphasizes.

The answer to flooding, he maintains, lies in the proper control of how land is used. That is why he sponsored legislation to create a zoning law study commission, which would have required every zoning proposal to be related to an over-all zoning plan.

It's why he believes that regional bodies such as NIPC should at least be able to review and comment on local zoning plans.

It's why he sponsored the Flood Plain Act of 1970 in the House, which would place restrictions on use of land in flood plains.

It is why he believes construction should be halted on flood plains until proper zoning is completed.

Zoning and planning occur repeatedly in conversations with Schlickman, and with them come the terms "area-wide" and "regional."

LACK OF comprehensive approaches to flooding, transportation, housing for low-income families, all can be associated with lack of regional cooperation in solving these problems.

The responsibility for much of this lies at the local level, he believes. But continued failure to cope with it all, he says, means that the responsibility must go "to a higher level of government."

If he goes back to Springfield, Schlickman can be expected to continue working for that concept.

Some of his battles are behind him. The Legislature finally accepted his parochiaid plan, and if portions of it are upheld by the Supreme Court, he expects the office of the superintendent of public instruction to implement it and seek any further modifications that are needed.

Win or lose on Nov. 7, he is ready for one more battle yet this year.

Schlickman declares he is "absolutely opposed to increases in pay" for the Legislature in the lame-duck session that will convene Nov. 26.

There is likely to be considerable infighting over the pay-raise issue in that session. But Gene Schlickman has been through that kind of thing before.

Robert S. Juckett:

Park Ridge Incumbent Led Fight To Oust Speaker Blair

by MARY HOULIHAN

If the Hollywood film biggies ever get around to making a movie of W. Clement Stone's book, "Success Through a Positive Mental Attitude" (PMA, for short), Republican State Rep. Robert Juckett would be a natural for the lead role.

Everything about Juckett communicates confidence. From his dress (a dark blue tie decorated with little gray Republican-type elephants and a gold elephant lapel pin) to his cool, deliberate manner.

When asked, for example, if he thought the Legislature might refrain from levying any new taxes next year, Juckett said, "It's possible. But if I were running the government, I'm sure we wouldn't have any need for them."

JUCKETT, of Park Ridge, is running for his fourth term in the Illinois General Assembly. He currently is chairman of the House Executive Committee, but a dispute between him and House Speaker W. Blair, R-Park Forest, may put an end to that.

Most recently, the argument was over Blair's alleged deal to force a bill through the House to pay for remodeling the speaker's office.

The story goes that Blair introduced the bill in the House asking for a $990,000 appropriation to redecorate the Speaker's office and enclose the legislative chambers in glass. The bill was passed in the House but tabled in the Senate.

According to Juckett, on the last day of the legislative session, Senate Majority Leader Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, tacked on a $550,000 appropriation for Kennedy-King College as an amendment to another bill. In a bargaining session with Blair, Partee allegedly agreed to take the redecorating bill out of committee if Blair would guarantee the House would pass on Kennedy-King.

When Juckett found out about what was going on, he shouted for recognition from the chair. But Democratic leader Clyde Choate immediately moved for adjournment. Juckett was infuriated.

AT PRESENT, Juckett is leading the fight to replace Blair with Majority Leader Henry Hyde, R-Chicago, as Speaker. If Hyde loses the challenge for the speakership, however, Juckett could lose his post as chairman of the Executive Committee. The committee deals with matters of public policy and is recognized as one of the most influential committees in the House.

Juckett describes himself as a conservative legislator in the main and favors local governmental control wherever possible. His view on the recent push by unincorporated Prospect Heights to form a city is a case in point.

The Village of Wheeling is against the incorporation, saying it would interfere with its total city planning. But Juckett disagrees.

"If the people of an area want to be incorporated as. . . a city, that's their decision to make," he says. "It appears that some of these areas (Wheeling) want specific things for themselves. I hate to see people left stranded by what someone else might not want."

SOME QUESTIONS, however, Juckett realizes cannot be solved completely by local jurisdiction, and in such cases he feels state action is called for. One area in which this applies is flooding.

"The question is not to wonder why something has happened but to prevent its happening in the future," he says. He is against a moratorium on building (as proposed recently by his running mate, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman.) "The building industry is a major factor in the economy," he says. "You can't stop all building. You've got to have a plan (to prevent flooding) and do it properly" he said.

Now that Gov. Ogilvie has released state funds for flood control, Juckett said he feels the problem will begin to be improved soon.

He also believes in state action in the case of O'Hare Airport and plans to reintroduce a bill in the Legislature this year for state control of O'Hare.

The bill would require O'Hare to give notice to city clerks and local papers of any changes at the airport that would affect the local community. It also would control the noise level of jet planes flying into O'Hare, specifically 747s.

"There is a possibility that the Legislature may authorize a change in the (property tax) assessment levels because of the noise of the airport, but we'll have to go slowly on that," Juckett says.

He is hesitant about the possibility of a third airport. "There's a lot to be done at Midway before we get a third airport," he says.

JUCKETT also is in favor of local control when it comes to the practice of giving one-twelfth of income tax revenues back to cities and villages on a per capita basis. Jucketthas introduced a bill to discontinue the practice.

"This was originally meant to sweeten things for the municipalities," Juckett says. "The problem is that we don't get one-twelfth of what the people paid in. We just get one-twelfth of the whole kitty. These are some of the richest areas in the state. We're paying for a greater share for the other areas," he says.

An example Juckett gives about the income tax revenue issue perhaps catches his over-all philosophy on local control in government. "Let the people who are spending the money raise the money," he says. "If your child wants a bike, he'll take far better care of the bike if he buys it than if you got out and buy the bike for him. My philosophy is that I'm spending my money and your money and not the state's money."

Nader's Lawmaker Profiles Reviewed

jeopardizing its security by limiting arms, and is wary of any reapproachment of the Soviet Union and China. His record shows he is a defender of trade with Rhodesia and South Africa.

CRANE "DISPUTED that a health care crisis existed in the United States and believed that a proposed system of national health insurance would cost more than existing health care, but would not improve services."

Among the items on Crane in the Nader staff profile is the episode of Erwin Weder, an Illinois resident who produced the cellophane, green "grass" used in Easter baskets. In early, 1972 the federal food and drug administration banned the crinkly cellophane because it was highly flammable, according to Nader's report. Thereupon Crane reportedly went to the defense of Weder — who faced a $250,000 inventory of useless products — and made a speech on his behalf on the floor of the House. The efforts were to no avail, according to the report and columnist Jack Anderson who originally carried the story.

The Nader staff report on Crane also brings up the issue of the congressman's future. A Wall Street Journal report in 1969 said Crane was looking to unseat Sen. Charles Percy in 1972, causing Crane to reassure Percy that it was not so. Later, a staff memo written by Crane's press aide bluntly stated that Crane should win upcoming congressional races with more than just a sharp margin.

The memo said in written form what political speculators in Crane's district have long been saying: that he is anxious for higher office at the right time and every election prior to that move is crucial to later decisions.

PERHAPS THE most interesting observation in the Nader staff report is a quote from someone identified only as a former Crane staff member:

"Phil Crane is first and foremost an arch conservative. He believes the bureaucracy in Washington has become so massive it interferes with our lives and must be dismantled. He believes that government involvement at all in things such as economic development and social welfare are wrong.

". . . He sees the ultimate road to change as convincing others of his point of view. That's why he spends time carrying his message to other parts of the country. He sees his role as more or less 'public educator'."

Two items in the Nader staff report are disputed by Crane and his staff. The report says Crane's percentage of winning votes in the district has been declining since 1970 and his 1970 "majority was 58 per cent, slightly less than in 1969, an unusual step down for an incumbent."

A Crane staff member said the actual figure in 1970 was 59.2 per cent and further, that 1970 was a tough year for Illinois Republicans because of the Stevenson sweep.

The report also discloses that in three key votes taken in Crane's house administration committee, he was absent for two of them. Nader's staff report says Crane was absent on the vote to reduce funding of the internal security committee to $450,000 and the vote to require two instead of four dates per year for filing federal campaign finance reports. Crane simply says he had conflicting committee dates on those days and was in attendance in the house banking and currency committee.

ABNER MIKVA (D)

The political history of Abner Mikva is long and involved and takes him first to Springfield as one of the Democratic "Young Turks" and later to Washington as the House representative of the homogeneous south Chicago communities of Hyde Park, Woodlawn and South Shore.

Nader's report on Mikva discusses the Congressman's years of fights and truces with the Daley Democratic machine and Mikva's decision to seek election in the new 10th District following the loss of his own political turf.

The report:

Party allegiance in the new 10th District is 51 per cent Republican. Although 30 per cent of the district is Jewish — as is Mikva — and might be expected to support him, the contest between Mikva and (Sam) Young . . . is considered a toss up.

NADER'S STAFF report points out that Mikva had to readjust his priorities to fit the need of a new suburban district and, once he made the decision to run in the 10th, submitted four bills aimed at curtailing the noise problems from O'Hare. All four measures were defeated.

The Nader staff report emphasizes Mikva's problems with Mayor Daley and endorses the idea that Mikva is the only independent Democrat to defeat weak machine candidates for a seat in Congress.

The report also points out, however, that Mikva's ties are indeed with the Democratic party and he will follow his party up to point where his conscience no longer allows him to go. For example, Mikva has still refused to endorse Edward Hanrahan for Cook County State's Attorney. But he has also made some concessions.

As a long-time foe of the congressional seniority system, Mikva once had an opportunity to vote against it in a bill which broke the system's control over the House District of Columbia committee of which Mikva is a member. Nader's staff report says Mikva voted with his party in that case, thus allowing the seniority system to go unchallenged by his vote. Mikva says that's true but he deemed the party's decision in caucus as his dictate in that matter.

THE NADER PROFILE also claims that Mikva derives much of his campaign funds from social contacts in Washington, a matter which Mikva denied to the Herald late last week.

Mikva claims the report is untrue and says most of his financing is locally produced.

One conflict of interest pointed up in the report was Mikva's ownership of some $8,000 worth of debentures in United Air Lines. The ownership made Mikva abstain from a bill which would have allowed airlines to get reimbursed for early research work on the SST. Mikva says he abstained from the vote out of conscience and has since gotten rid of the United Air Lines debentures.

Another case from the report:

Mikva has accepted campaign contributions frm executives of HMH, Inc., publishers of Playboy Magazine. The law firm of which Mikva was a partner represented HMH, as they still do. The firm contributes to Mikva's campaign funds, despite the fact that he supported lower mail subsidies and raised magazine postal rates. He also opposed allowing publications to sell their subscription lists.

Mikva's voting record shows voting patterns which are liberal, generally party oriented, but also deeply aligned with liberals of either Republican or Democratic persuasion.

In 1969, 1970 and 1971 he voted with the majority of House Democrats 80 per cent of the time as measured in key votes.

Who's Behind Nader Report

Who is the Nader report?

The answer, of course, is that it is not Ralph Nader.

Although Nader is the funding agent and initiator of the mammoth report, he is the author of only a preface to each Congressional profile.

Directing the Nader project in Washington was Robert Fellmeth, a full-time Nader aide. Another key worker was Mark Silbergeld, a 32-year-old native of Illinois who grew up in St. Louis and holds degrees in government and law.

More specifically, the authors of the profiles of Congressmen Philip Crane and Abner Mikva are three young women who helped form the Nader task force during the summer. The three women were paid $400 a month and given room and board in a dormitory while working on the project with other Nader summer help.

Information from the project office in Washington gives this information about the staffers:

Liza Bercovici: Co-author of the Crane profile; graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1969 and from the University of California at Berkeley in 1972 with a degree in journalism. Writer on the Daily Californian, the campus paper, part-time stringer for Newsweek magazine, reporter for the Sacramento Bee, Associated Press and the Wall Street Journal.

Catherine Bell: Co-author of the Crane profile; graduated with honors with a bachelor's degree from Harvard University (then still Radcliffe) in 1965. Master of Education degree from Stanford University, 1966. Two years in the Peace Corps in Brazil where she taught English. She is now a free-lance writer.

Caren Calish: Author of the Abner Mikva profile; bachelor's degree in journalism and philosophy from Ohio Wesleyan in 1971, now an employe of a Nader study group.

Herald Editorial

Our Choice:

Bernard Carey

Cook County voters interested in decreasing crime in the streets, in an honest and efficient government and in establishing and maintaining high reward for law enforcement should cast their ballots Nov. 7 for C. Bernard Carey.

Carey's campaign has centered on greater respect for the law enforcement system in the county. We could not agree more strenuously that such respect must be today's top priority in achieving good government in Cook County.

Although Carey is obviously inexperienced as a trial lawyer, he has demonstrated himself as an able administrator. Additionally, Carey has a remarkable and impressive background in high-level law enforcement.

Bernard Carey

Carey has also served as assistant director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, a highly respected law enforcement agency he helped organize. He has also served as the special assistant to Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott, leading the investigation into the estate of the late Paul Powell.

Of equal importance, we feel Carey will bring to the State's Attorney's office a high degree of professionalism which we find has been sorely lacking during the administration of his opponent, Edward V. Hanrahan, for the past four years.

That absence of professional, responsible leadership on Hanrahan's part constitutes only one of many reasons we find him unacceptable for reelection.

While Hanrahan must be admired to a certain degree for the vigor with which he has attacked violent crime, his inflammatory remarks and actions while in office have served only to further divide the population and to tarnish the image of law enforcement in the county. Instead of promoting mutual understanding and respect, the incumbent has attacked and alienated the judges, defense lawyers, witnesses, victims, minority groups and the news media.

Despite his refusal to do so, we remain firm in finding it inexcusable and disgraceful Hanrahan has not taken a leave of absence while under indictment for his role in the Black Panther raid.

His involvement in that affair demonstrates again Hanrahan's double standard in applying the law. Many of the things he criticizes about the judicial system, when they apply to other defendants, are the same things he demands as a defendant in his own behalf.

He has blatantly avoided applying the full measure of the law to his political colleagues in county government when evidence of their wrongdoing is made public. Instead of prosecuting, Hanrahan finds excuses not to prosecute, or takes action against those secondary in culpability rather than the real culprits. Despite his juggling of statistics, his conviction record is unimpressive.

Carey, we believe, will work honestly and diligently to weed out corruption in county government, to bring a merit system to the office and to apply the law equally to all residents of the county.

But most of all, Carey has promised to work to improve the image of law enforcement in the county and we believe he will.

Hanrahan was successful in his primary bid largely as a result of suburban, Republican voters who crossed party lines to vote for a "law-and-order" candidate.

We now urge those Republicans, and all other voters, to vote Nov. 7 for Carey — also a "law-and-order" candidate, but one who has clearly demonstrated the temperament suited to the office.

We're All Commuters

What is sometimes billed as the new American Dream — getting away from it all and moving to the country — may turn out to be a misleading picture.

Few people are actually moving to isolated rural areas, say two University of Wisconsin rural sociologists, James J. Zuiches and Glenn V. Fuguitt. In fact, the trend is in the opposite direction.

In a statewide survey they conducted in Wisconsin, the sociologists found that most state residents would prefer to live in small towns or rural areas — but within commuting distance of a large central city.

"Basically, people seem to want the best of both environments," says Zuiches. "If there were to be shift in population at all, expressed preferences indicate many more people would move closer to big cities than away from them."

This doesn't mean that rural development should be discouraged, he stresses. But if rural development programs are to succeed, they must take into account the features of life that make small towns and rural areas near metropolitan centers the most preferred residential location.

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

Teichert Stand Blasted

The article in the Oct. 4 Herald entitled "Teichert Urges Voluntary Action on Housing Issue" is not the most pleasant way to say good morning. Robert Welch once stated that if something you read offends you, don't berate the author but instead, question those who created the issue. The author of the article deserves credit for an excellent job of reporting the village board meeting. The first paragraph summed up the memorandum delivered by Mayor Teichert to the Mount Prospect Board, and for the benefit of those who did not read it, is quoted:

"Voluntary participation in forming a plan for low and moderate-income housing 'based on actual needs' of the Chicago suburban area was named last night as the only way Mount Prospect will avoid having such housing forced upon it through some action by the courts or governmental agencies."

In Philip Crane's September Report from Congress, he gave the results of his recent questionnaire. Question 10 asked: "Do you favor low-cost subsidized housing in your community without prior local consent?" A negative reply was received from 75 per cent of persons under 21 and 93 per cent of persons over 21. Crane introduced a bill requiring prior consent of local government before subsidized housing is permissible in local communities. The bill is likely to come up before adjournment.

I don't envy Mayor Teichert's position in this matter, but in view of Congressman Crane's bill, I can't accept the Mayor's recommendations. His capitulation in favor of low-cost housing is altogether out of order. The article further states that Mayor Teichert also "enumerated fears that federal and state funding programs such as the state income tax rebate or the federal revenue sharing program may be conditioned on compliance with regional plans." I distinctly recall President Nixon stating that the revenue sharing plan would have absolutely no strings attached. The granddaddy of Mayor Teichert's "fears" started with the 16th Amendment which voided Section 8, Article 4 of the U.S. Constitution. (Those who wish to blame our founding fathers, please take notice.) Eleven states have voted to repeal the 16th Amendment and have ratified the Liberty Amendment. It would not be surprising if those same states were used as pilot-program states for low-cost housing.

'Without the consent of the governed' certainly conflicts with the intent of a government 'of the people, by the people and for the people.' Nearly 200 years ago, George Washington warned us: "Government is not reason; it is not eloquence; it is force! Like fire, it is a dangerous servant and a fearful master."

Howard Assn. Praises Editorial

The John Howard Association greatly appreciates your public service effort in providing the editorial regarding the need for a state administered probation system free of patronage and operated on a professional basis.

The development of a recognized, professional probation system is the most urgent priority in the juvenile and criminal justice fields today and the most important one in our 71 year history. We have been and will continue to work to the best of our ability to acquaint various key organizations throughout the state with the past and present serious problems regarding probation and the advantages of a state administered professional system which will provide better protection to the community, fewer offenders continuing in a life of delinquency and crime and long range tax dollar savings in the process.

It will indeed be a great struggle to accomplish the above mission. As we have experienced in the past, editorials such as you provided can make that big difference between failure and success.

We will keep in touch with you until mission is accomplished. If the going gets rough, particularly during the Legislative Session, we may well need to call upon you for additional, strategically timed help. Again, thanks for your excellent efforts.

Clubwomen Laud Workshop

Thanks so much for inviting me and our publicity chairman of Signal Hill Chapter DAR to your publicity workshop on September 7 and 8.

I attended the program in Plum Grove Club and Barb Sullivan attended in Des Plaines.

It was very clever to introduce your staff via the style show — and, I may say, quite entertaining. The coffee break was a refreshing interlude.

But most of all we appreciated the guidelines of what is acceptable, what is newsworthy and the hints on taking good pictures with the emphasis on the person or persons rather than the background. When a picture is to be taken how many of us select as of paramount importance a fireplace, a picture or interesting art object!

So thanks for this short education in writing and presenting new copy and pictures for a very pleasant morning.

After attending the press and publicity clinic recently, there is no doubt why Paddock Publications win all those awards!

Many thanks to yourself (Marianne Scott) and the entire staff for a most informative morning session, and the vinyl "carry-alls."

Have added as a permanent reference in our file for publicity chairmen your booklet of ABC's on writing club publicity.

Although it was left unsaid, I know why your people at Paddock have the most interesting pages for your readers . . . you are most interested in your readers themselves!

Many thanks for all the wonderful help you have given us in the past . . . and I promise never to send any photos of Bobby Hull for publicity.

He Applauds Palatine Park Vote

The results of the Palatine Park District referendum on October 14 compel me to try to express my feelings for and about the community my wife and I chose as our home more than 20 years ago. Seeing the overwhelming voter approval of the program was, for me, a deeply moving experience — from several different viewpoints.

As a resident of Palatine, I am proud of my fellow citizens. At a time when all of us are concerned about taxes and other increasing costs of living, their decision required exceptional wisdom, understanding, and foresight.

As one who has devoted the better part of his leisure hours to improving our park system for the past 13 years, I am gratified that so many others share the belief that fine recreational facilities and programs are a vital measure of the quality of community life.

As a member of the Park District Board of Commissioners, I feel an even greater responsibility to those who have proved they want and deserve the very best. And I am confident that every member of the board and staff feels the same commitment to the people of Palatine.

My personal satisfaction at seeing Palatine become the finest of Chicago's suburbs has been immeasurable. I doubt that I can ever repay my fellow citizens for an experience so richly rewarding. But I intend to try.

Anonymity Has Its Place

One of the policies which seems to be engrained deeply in newspaper tradition is that a newspaper shall not reply in print to even the most vitriolic letter to the editor (unless a correction is in order).

The image of the impartial referee or umpire is invoked when you think about how the voice of the newspaper regards its letters. You might assume we're calm, dispassionate and level-headed, even under the most vitriolic attack from the most vicious letter-writer.

But thats' only part of the truth.

Most letters don't bother me (by way of explanation, I process all Fence Post Letters). The ones with a touch of wit — there aren't many of them — are wildly amusing, and I imagine a kinship with our "veteran" correspondents, such as Walter Gates Jr., Peggy Daley Taylor and Virginia Sandburg.

I'm somewhat annoyed, however, with persons who ask to have their names withheld by request. In most cases it is a protection we freely and gladly offer; in a few cases, the reader is displaying a disturbing fear of his neighbors or even a fear in the credibility of his own opinion.

My ulcer throbs, however, when an interesting letters ends with a cryptic signature as "A Not So Heartless Construction Worker's Wife," "Joe," "Resident of Ivy Hill," "An Anonymous Mother" or "A Concerned Citizen of Buffalo Grove."

Quite often, these anonymous correspondents have something to say, but they won't sign their names or offer an address. Thus, we won't print their letters.

When a reader refuses to offer any identification, it represents to me one of two things. Either the reader consciously doesn't want his or her contribution to appear in the paper, or the reader doesn't trust us ot put "Name Withheld by Request" on the bottom of the letter.

It seems to be primarily the latter. People don't trust other people or newspapers, so they offer no signature. And, thus I have no chance to tell them that, in the last ten months, we've never failed to honor a request to withhold a name.

But why not publish anonymous letters, you may ask. Mainly because we've got to be certain you, the letterwriter, is a real person, for our own information. But we don't especially care who you are, but we must know you're alive.

Those anonymous letters arrive frequently — seemingly even more often than a political letter crosses this desk.

Readers, it would seem, should be raging about the politics of Hanrahan, Carey, Ogilvie, Percy, Pucinski and the cast of thousands of local candidates who are talking about every conceivable local, state or national issue.

We are indeed receiving election-oriented letters, but they seem primarily to be form letters from little old ladies or men in tennis shoes from Punxsatawney, Pa., who seem to have nothing better to do than write to newspapers about candidates.

It would be logical if they subscribed to the Herald, but few indicate a personal attachment for the Northwest suburbs. And their letters drone on and on and on.

Those letters may annoy me, but the vast bulk of letters received from you, the local reader, show you're involved and interested in what happens in your community. Keep up the good work.

Word A Day

Business Today

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street long has been credited with the power to make and break presidential candidates. That no longer is true, according to John L. Loeb Jr., co-managing partner of Loeb, Rhoades & Co., New York. And he has the credentials to make such a statement. Loeb, Rhoades, a large investment banking and brokerage house, accounted for 4 per cent of the New York Stock Exchange volume last year. And his granduncle was Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic governor and senator for the state of New York.

"Fifty years ago Wall Street certainly did influence politics," said Loeb recently at his garden town house in Manhattan. "You then had a few men with enormous fortunes on Wall Street. They had a tight hold on industry through investment and commercial banks. They had influence."

But the Street has changed, says Loeb, a tall, darkly handsome man of 42. Wealth now is in the hands of institutions, such as mutual funds, not individuals. Business, in general, does influence politicians, as Loeb sees it. But it's through individual business leaders who have the ability to generate public opinion as well as campaign money. They are respected today just as the influential Wall Streeter was respected in the 1920s.

ONCE ACTIVE Democrats, the Loebs now are heavily involved in Republican politics. The Loebs recently hosted a fund-raising banquet for John Connally's Democrats for Nixon campaign. After supporting Lyndon Johnson in 1964, John Jr. turned to the Republicans, probably because of a long friendship with Nelson Rockefeller, the New York governor.

"Since the investment community is involved in government, and that means my family and I are, I decided to get actively involved," said Loeb. "So I asked Mr. Rockefeller how I could help. That's how I became his specialist on air and water pollution back in 1966 when the word 'ecology' hadn't even been invented."

The exact title of his job is Chairman, Governor's Council of Environmental Advisers. To help the council Loeb set up "a little foundation" and hired a professor who had taught him at Harvard to assist in administrative details.

Like many houng men born to the political arena, Loeb likes the practical side of politics as well as the idealistic side. Four years ago he was a delegate to the Republican National convention. This year he agreed to serve as an honorary rather than regular delegate to open up delegation space for more women, young people and members of minority groups.

ASKED WHAT HE thought about Sen. George McGovern's chances in November, Loeb said he respected the senator for winning the nomination by "sheer effort and image" but doubted that he would win "one out of 10 Wall Street votes." He said he thought McGovern suffered in the investment community because of a "lack of interest in and knowledge of" that area. He also thought McGovern's emphasis on "tax justice" rather than "getting the economy moving" had turned many business, financial and investment leaders against him.

"His views," said Loeb, "hark back to the Middle Ages when the church would excommunicate a man if he made money from money. Such an attitude is counterproductive to our system."

Loeb believes tax reforms are needed but thinks they should be reviewed "after the election" to avoid emotional decisions.

Chrysler, UOP Agree

Universal Oil Products Co., (UOP) reached an agreement with Chrysler Corp. to undertake design, engineering and site preparation for a manufacturing facility with a capability of providing a substantial part of Chrysler's 1975 model requirements for catalysts.

Concurrently, both companies intend to negotiate a contract for a specified quantity of catalyst to be supplied by UOP for use by Chrysler as original equipment for 1975 motor vehicles.

Stock Market Meanders As Economy Surges

Despite the economy's recent strong performance, the stock market continues to meander as investor attitudes are apparently being dominated by a gnawing uncertainty which has made the market sensitive to bad news.

Economists at Chicago's Northern Trust Bank note that the stepped-up bombing in Vietnam, the international monetary flare-up, nomination of Sen. McGovern, and the recent rise in interest rates have all had negative effects on the market.

The most basic investor concern, though, appears to be that of rising prices and the administration's possible reaction if the inflation rate should worsen, says the bank's economic newsletters, "Business Comment."

This static market performance comes within the context of an economy which continues to advance strongly. Real gross national product appears to have climbed at better than a 6 per cent annual rate in the third quarter while the inflation pace was not much over 3 per cent.

The current business expansion has been marked by a strong and stable uptrend in personal income, says "Business Comment." From the end of 1970 to August 1972, personal income has climbed at more than a 9 per cent annual rate. As a result, growth in consumption and investment by individuals has provided much of the impetus for the general economic recovery.

Northern Trust economists expect the economic recovery to show further progress in the coming months, with the uptrend in personal income continuing at a good rate. Federal government workers are scheduled for a 4.4 per cent salary increase at the start of 1973, while the heavy slate of labor negotiations next year — involving some of the nation's most powerful unions — may produce relatively generous contracts.

Some clouds lurk on the horizon, however, says "Business Comment," as 1973 will bring a sharp increase in required contributions for social insurance, as well as the threat of new tax legislation which may reduce consumers' willingness to spend.

Sola Reenters Fluorescent Market

Sola Electric Division of Sola Basic Industries in Elk Grove Village is producing a new line of fluorescent lighting ballasts. The new line will be sold and marketed through the sales representatives of Sola's sister division, Hevi-Duty Electric, according to Glenn E. Ronk, president of Sola Electric.

Sola Electric, an industry pioneer in fluorescent ballast development in the 1950s, discontinued his line in 1966.

"Our reason for re-entering this market now is that our new line of fluorescent ballasts in combination with our existing line of high intensity discharge lamp ballasts, and the existing Hevi-Duty low voltage general purpose and control transofmres, make up what we feel to be a full-line product package for the nation's electrical distributors and wholesalers," Ronk said.

State Grant To Help Pay For MSD Sewers

A $1,115,800 grant to help pay for the construction of two interceptor sewers connecting to the Upper Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant was given to the Metropolitan Sanitary District by the State of Illinois last week.

The grand, issued under the Anti-Pollution Bond Act of 1970, will be used for construction of interceptor sewer numbers one and two.

The two connecting interceptors will run from the plant north along the west side of Rte. 53 to Golf Road.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

Before taking out your next installment loan, check the banks in your area to see whether any are offering the latest wrinkle in the business, the "simple interest installment loan." It can be a substantial money saver.

The easiest way to understand it is to begin with what it isn't — the way the interest is charged on consumer loans by nearly all banks today. It's called the "add-on method." You borrow $1,000 for two years, at 7 per cent interest. That's $70 twice, or $140 which is added onto the amount you owe the bank.

Work out the arithmetic on this $1,140, repaid in 24 monthly installments, and it turns out that the effective interest rate is actually 13.4 per cent.

What it costs to borrow this $1,000, however, often doesn't stop there. For example, you're a few days late getting a payment into the mail. How much you can be charged as a penalty varies, with the law in each state, but it might typically be around $2.50 for each late payment.

THEN, SUPPOSE you find you're flush after a few months, and want to pay off the loan. (Bankers say around three-fourth of all consumer loans are paid off early.) The bank will usually lay "the rule of 78" on you as a method of figuring how much interest you save by prepaying.

Say you're paying off the whole thing after two months. Interest for the two years was $140 — divide by 24 and you get $5.83 a month. So you're all set to be charged $11.66 as interest, and get the rest of the $140 refunded.

Nunh-uh, says the bank. According to the "rule of 78" you owe $21.93 as interest, figuring out to a rate of about 17½ per cent.

In contrast to all that, the new simple-interest loan works approximately the same as a mortgage loan. Interest is figured on a daily basis, on the unpaid balance of the loan as of the day.

Thus, there are no penalty charges. You simply go on paying one day's interest, each day, on whatever amount you owe the bank, until your payment reduces it to a smaller amount.

More importantly, when you repay a loan — whether you pay it all of, or just send in a double payment some month when you're flush — you get the full benefit of the saving on interest.

TRUE, IF YOU'RE never late with a payment, and let a loan run for its full term, you come out the same with either method — but for most borrowers, the simple-interest method will prove to cost less.

It is not in widespread use yet, but one of the country's giant banks, the Continental in Chicago, began using the new method late last month — a sign that it probably will soon be picked up by others. James A. Matthews, head of the bank's consumer loan division, says Continental is "one of only a few banks" now offering the plan.

"We think it will catch on because of demand by bank customers," he says, "since it lets the consumer pay interest for only the amount of money he uses, for the time he uses it."

Chamber Program On Revenue Sharing

A new statewide program to acquaint government officials with their responsibilities to utilize federal revenue sharing funds to reduce the property tax burden was recently announced by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

The campaign, launched on the heels of new revenue sharing legislation in Washington, will involve local chambers of commerce throughout the state, said chamber president Lester W. Brann Jr.

"We must pinpoint and publicize government's responsibility to participate in controlling its own costs, which contribute so much to the inflationary spiral," Brann said. "Utilizing the state's network of local chambers, we will focus attention on each community's unique opportunity to apply sound management concepts to the business of government and prevent further tax increases."

Hersey Wins Meet, Fremd Wins The Championship

by LARRY EVERHART
Cross Country Editor

Both the surprising and the expected occurred Saturday as the Mid-Suburban League cross country season came to a close.

The surprising was that Hersey, not Fremd, won the conference meet on a cold, rainy morning over a three-mile course at the Union 76 Oil Co. grounds near Hoffman Estates.

The expected is that Fremd nevertheless is the MSL season champion — and that Arnie Jackson of Schaumburg had little trouble in keeping his personal record perfect, winning the race by a healthy margin.

The Vikings of Fremd had a big advantage going into the meet, and as it turned out they needed every bit of it — although most forecasters didn't think they would. Fremd's ace in the hole was its 11-0 league record in dual meets, which account for 50 per cent of the final standings.

Hersey was only 8-2-1, tied for third place, in dual meets and thus could not have won the overall title unless Fremd finished lower than second in the conference meet. And at that, it came pretty close to happening. Fremd was only five points ahead of third-place Palatine Saturday (78-83), winning the overall crown by that scant margin. Hersey took the meet surprisingly easily with just 55 points.

Actually, the Huskies had been figured as a serious threat since a week earlier when they finished second in a power-packed invitational at Mattoon.

Arlington, steadily improving and with fine balance, was fourth Saturday and fourth overall, as Palatine was third on both counts.

All of the top four MSL teams are ranked among the best eight in the state, making the league the strongest in Illinois in cross country — and probably the best in the country. (This state has better times, for the most part, than any other).

Jackson, enjoying a fabulous season as a junior and probably one of the top three harriers in the state, dominated this meet as he has every other he has entered this year. He might not be beaten until the state final, when he goes up against the best ditance runner in the country, Craig Virgin of Lebananon. Jackson, "slowed" a bit by Saturday's horrible weather conditions, settled for a 15:34 time. (He has been under 15 minutes, incredibly, for three miles).

Following a good distance behind, but in close order and also with excellent times considering the wetness and cold, were Elk Grove's Brian Powell, Forest View's Jim Wise, Hersey's Jay McCarthy and Arlington's Neil Haseman.

The gap between Hersey and Fremd was not really as wide as the point totals would indicate, since the Vikings main pack of runners were not too far behind the Huskies' (minus the top runners for each squad). But as Fremd coach Ron Menely lamented, "We never had the leader we needed to bring the whole group up."

Larry Travis, Hersey coach, admitted that his team was not really "up" for the meet psychologically because "we knew we couldn't win the conference. The guys were just out to beat Fremd today, that's all. There was no pressure . . . they just went out and ran, relaxed and loose. We moved out fast in the beginning, just like at Mattoon, and stayed there.

"The big surprise was (Chris) Cooney. He came out of nowhere to be our third man." Preceding him was McCarthy, the best runner among contending teams, and John Jones, ninth among the 80-plus runners.

Closely following Cooney were Tom Burridge and Dan Leider, all getting in before Fremd's second man.

Menely remarked, "I thought we should have five in the top 12, but we had one (junior Mike Rohrer, who led the Vikes with eighth). After Hersey's big five, in 16th through 19th places, were Fremd's Jamie Olson, Chuck Ruppenthal, Steve Inbody and Ken Geheb.

Menely analyzed the meet thusly:

"Hersey looked great and we looked terrible. No one guy let down . . . it was the whole team. I guess we were complacent and overconfident because we knew we wouldn't lose the whole thing unless we were third.

"Maybe we needed this loss. We always have one poor meet late in the year, usually in the district. Now maybe we've got it out of our systems. I've got a whole new team now. Suddenly they want to work hard. They learned that no ranking ever won a meet. We'll be back."

Other fine performers in the top dozen Saturday were Elk Grove's Damian Archbold, Palatine's Scott Williams and

Oak Park Wins Illinois Girls Tennis Crown

by PAUL LOGAN

The weather was a woman hater over the weekend.

Following a frigid Friday for opening play in the first Illinois High School Association Girls Tennis Tournament, Old Mother Nature tried to ruin the semi-finals and finals on Saturday with a steady rain. This ancient anti-Libber was fooled but good!

Moving from the puddled Arlington High School courts to the River Trails Tennis Center in Mount Prospect, it was there where Oak Park-River Forest captured the inaugural tourney over closest rival Rock Island, 26-21.

Freshman Susie Replogle — repeating the accomplishment of former frosh standout Billy Martin — came back from a 6-1 opening set loss for 6-3, 6-2 victories. Martin won the boys title in 1971.

Susie's teammates — the doubles team of Maureen Nelson and Sarah Dutton — just missed making it an OP-RF sweep in losing to Pam Zwer and Carol Foss of Rock Island, 6-1, 6-4. Sarah is the sister of state champion Bill.

Watching on the sidelines were some of the 24 Herald area girls who competed but were eliminated on Friday. Two singles players and a doubles team made it to the quarterfinals that cold grey day.

Schaumburg's Peg Kennedy made it to the fourth match with wins over Wheeling's Kim Luhrs, Rock Island's Julie Adams and Evanston's Fran Gross. Then Peg, eighth seeded, ran into Miss Replogle, the first seed, and lost in straight sets to the soon-to-be singles champ.

Arlington's Clare Gates advanced to the last match Friday by beating Thornwood's Jill Tasso, Moline United Township's Kathie Holmes and Fremd's Andrea Laffey. Clare, fifth seeded, then had the misfortune of running into Rock Island's Sue Briggs.

Briggs should have been seeded among the best but — through a communications breakdown — failed to be ranked. The talented Rock Islander quickly disposed of Clare and got as far as the semifinals before losing to Replogle.

Another area casualty was Prospect's Robin Heileman. Seeded 12th, Robin thought she was going to be facing a weak opponent in her first round. However, because of the mixup, she had to meet Briggs.

Advancing to the quarterfinals in doubles action was the Arlington team of Mary Baines and Dianne Dewitt. Much to the surprise of Coach Mary Lou Hundt, the state finals manager, her second doubles team defeated three straight area opponents — Wheeling's Sue Ingram and Debbie Smart, Palatine's Carrie Carr and Cathy Aldana and Maine West's Barb Swarz and Maureen Brock.

Then Mary and Dianne ran into Dutton and Nelson — the twosome that just missed playing for the championship — and dropped straight set decisions.

The showings of the Arlington singles and doubles players didn't leave the host school with the top showing in the area. That privilege went to Palatine. The girls of Coach Karen Bock tied for fifth with Hinsdale Central with 14 points each.

Maine West, coached by Barb Jones was close behind in a tie for ninth with Homewood-Flossmoor with 12 points. Both Maine and Palatine brought six girls to the tourney from the districts. The qualifying points carried over in determining the state finishers.

Arlington, using only three girls, racked up six points in the state meet. The SERVING IN the quarterfinals is Arlington's Clare Gates. She lost her fourth round match to Rock Island star Sue Briggs. Also advancing to the final round Friday at the state tennis tourney were Peg Kennedy of Schaumburg and Arlington's Mary Baines and Dianne Dewitt.

WHEW! Total exhaustion is evident as three cross country runners from Fremd and one from Palatine stagger through the chute. They have just finished a grueling three-mile race in mud, rain and cold in Saturday's Mid-Suburban League meet. Fremd's pack couldn't make it in before Hersey's and the Huskies won the meet in an upset — although the Vikings, on the strength of their 11-0 league dual meet record, still held on to the overall MSL title. Hersey Stands Alone At Top Of North Race

by JIM COOK

It was hard to believe Hersey was still hungry.

After completely humiliating Wheeling on the gridiron, 46-14, and satisfying a successful homecoming appetite, the Huskies still demonstrated enough vim and vigor to polish off a box of donuts presented by head coach Joe Gliwa in nearly the same manner.

"That first quarter was the story of the ball game as far as we're concerned," a happy Gliwa said referring to Hersey's commanding 24-0 margin.

"We were helped along the way (Wheeling fumbled seven times and lost six of them)," Gliwa continued, "but I thought we could move the ball in the air even under these weather conditions and we did."

Did they ever.

Husky quarterback Mark Zakula looked like a 15-year veteran while threading the needle on nine of 14 occasions in the first half despite a steady drizzle and bitter wind that played havoc with the pigskin.

"Anyone who still won't respect our ability to pass is in for a real surprise," Gliwa added. "I don't think we have to worry about our offense being capable of putting points on the board for us."

For the Wildcats, it was an evening of frustration that waited no longer than the opening kickoff to make its initial appearance.

Wheeling fumbled the boot and permitted Hersey to set up camp at the 32 yard line where Husky Dan Damato immediately put the homecoming hosts on top, 3-0, with a 20-yard field goal.

Fumbleitis continued to plague the 'Cats on their next possession as punter Jeff Paulson was forced to field a snap on one bounce and wound up scrambling for his life before losing the ball to Hersey's Mark Kleiner at the Wheeling 23.

After an incompletion, Zakula spotted his favorite target, Marty Friel, with a nine-yard bullseye and capped the three-play drive with a 14-yard strike to Friel cutting across the endzone.

Hersey's third score in the period, still with 2:08 left, was the direct result of another Wildcat bobble which permitted the Huskies a golden opportunity at the 21 yard line.

Pettit's Bomb Sinks Palatine In 211 Feature

by PAUL LOGAN

You might call it an "Al Ratcliff Special."

Fremd's head football coach has been dishing out his specialty — defense — over the past four years in the Mid-Suburban League. When his name is mentioned around the conference, it's synonymous with a slug-it-out style of play.

Ratcliff's Vikings showed off his philosophy to offensive-minded Palatine Friday night on the Pirates' home turf. The result was the same as in 1970 as Fremd shutoff its cross-town rival, 7-0, during a steady rain.

Combining their usual stingy style with a little of Palatine's specialty — the pass, the Vikings, now 3-2, knocked into a four-way tie for second with Palatine, Arlington and Rolling Meadows. Hersey's out front with a 4-1 league record.

Fremd pulled off the BIG play early in the second quarter after a punt and short runback gave the team first down on its own 45. Quarterback Mark Pettit rolled out to his right and cut loose a bomb to Terry Whiteley. The 6-2, 190-pounder pulled it in on about the 20 and galloped the rest of the way for the score. Dave Sharpe's kick made it 7-0.

"We call it the 'Fox Play'," said a still smiling Ratcliff as he stood near the chanting, rocking Viking team bus. Fremd hasn't been known as a passing team in the past, but "Pettit is just a little bit better quarterback than we've had in the past."

Terry Whiteley

The game looked like it might be Palatine's in the first quarter. The first two times the Vikings had the ball, they turned it over to the Pirates after very short punts.

Palatine took over on the Fremd 44 after a 17-yarder. Following two successive first downs which left the Pirates just 20 yards from a touchdown, quarterback Jim Sobczynski's pass was intercepted by Whiteley.

After the Palatine defense stiffened, Fremd punted from its own 36. This time the boot traveled only seven yards! Again the Pirates marched for two first downa nd had a third and three on the Fremd 14 when Whiteley stopped the drive again. The husky linebacker threw halfback Terry Tansey for a four-yard loss.

Placekicker Tim Lane, hero of the Arlington game the week before, attempted a 35-yard field goal. It was short.

The Pirates were to get no closer than the Fremd 36 the rest of the wet night. That penetration came late in the second quarter when Mike McCostlin stripped the ball from Joe Alden and Steve Robbins recovered on the Viking 36.

Palatine's next series of plays must have been a delight to the defensive heart of Al Ratcliff. Dave Dudziak nailed a ball carrier for a four-yard loss . . . Walt Graf sacked the quarterback for a minus 17 . . . The Pirates were then called for holding as the spirited Vikings kept up the pressure . . . Finally the defense only allowed a three-yard gain to force the Pirates to kick from their own 26.

In other words, it was fourth down and 48!

"We're going backwards faster than I've ever seen a team go backwards," said a very disgusted Palatine coach Arv Herstedt. "We just lost our poise.

"This was the worst football game I've ever seen. It was almost identical to the 1970 game — that was the second worst."

The secret to Fremd's 3-2 lead in the city series was the 1-2 punch of its defense, according to Ratcliff. The Vikings didn't allow Palatine's usually effective passing attack to "get behind us" and "we had the good pass rush when we needed it."

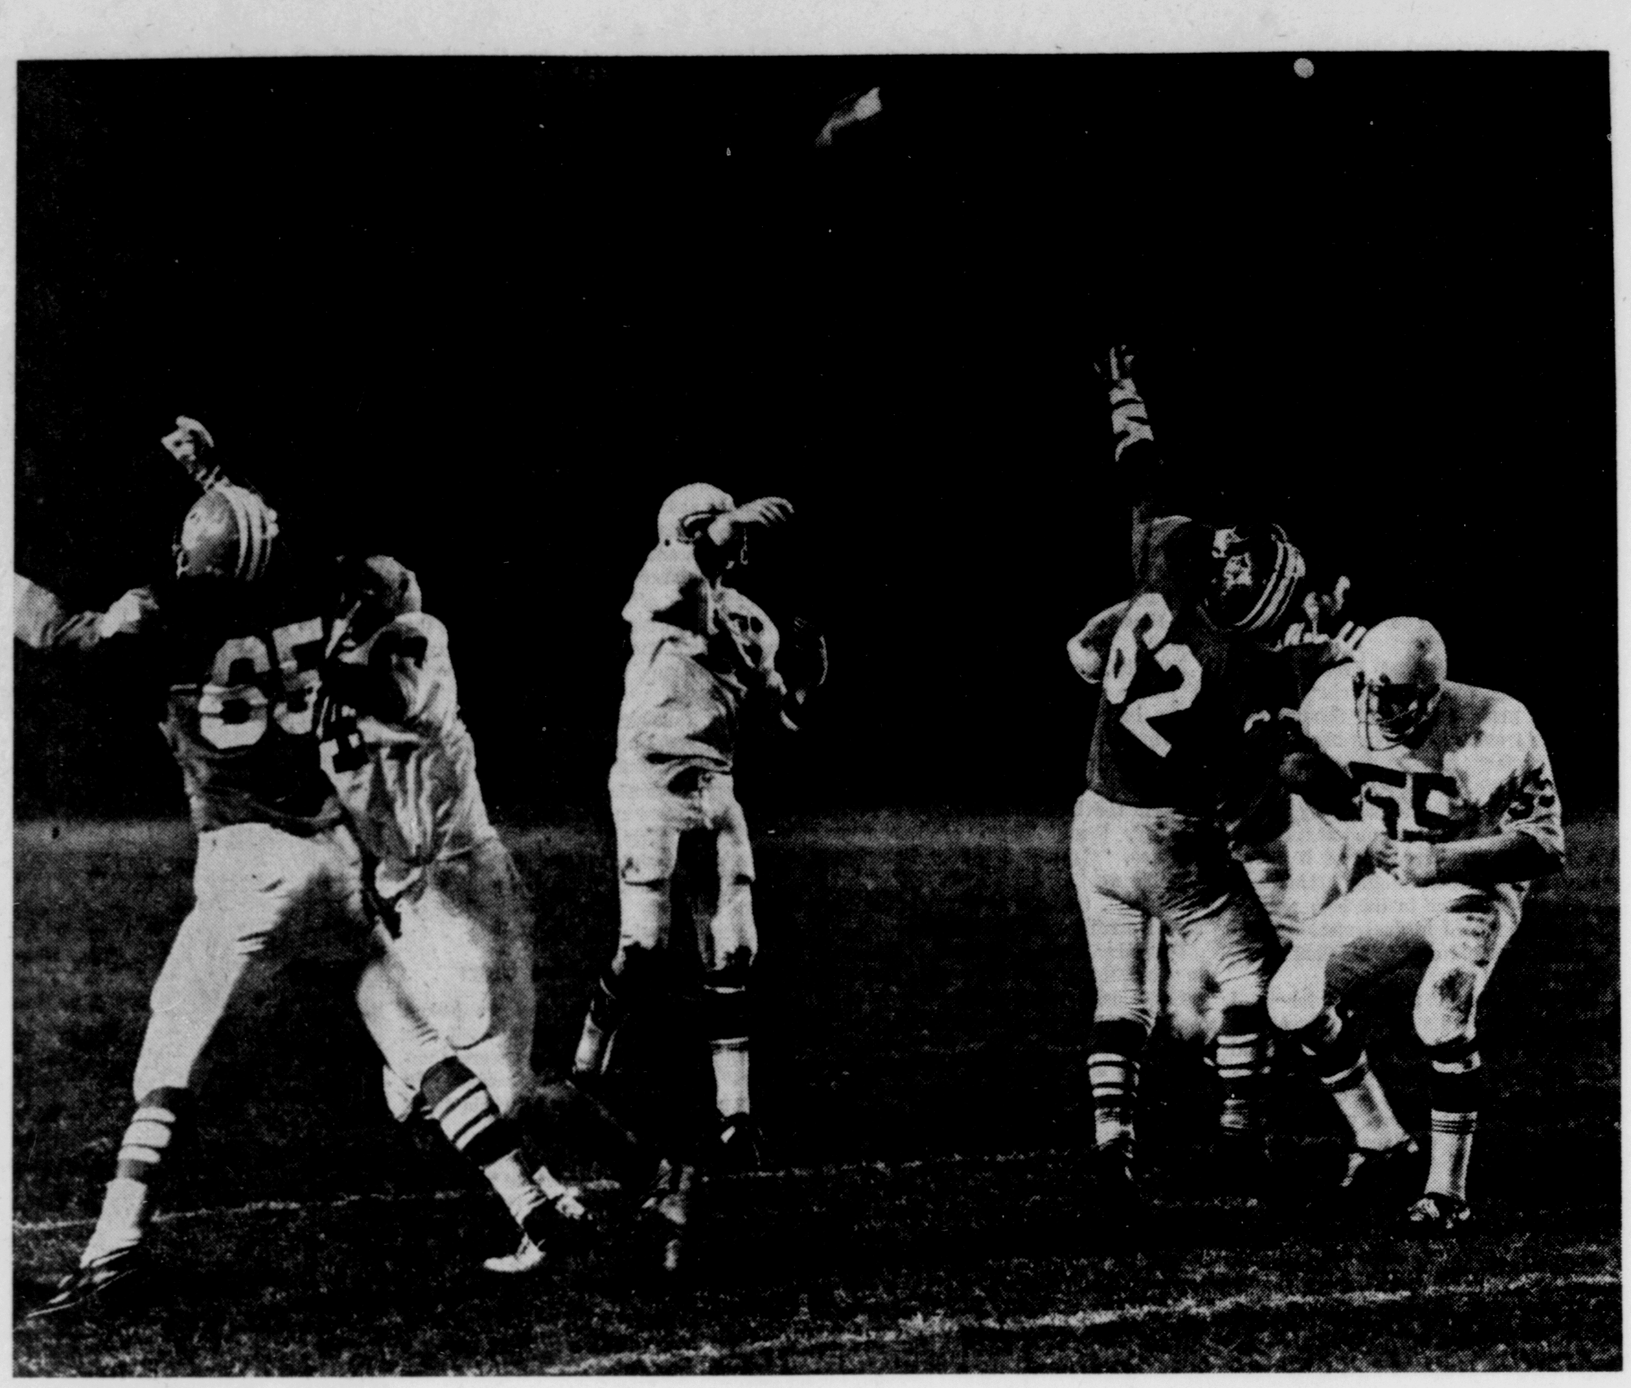
Five times they threw the Palatine quarterback for losses. Accounting for the biggest sack was Steve McGuinn. The smallish (5-9, 160) senior defensive end slammed into Sobczynski like a six-foot, 200-pounder for a seven-yard loss on the losers' last play of the game. Sobczynski was hoping to find a Pirate open on fourth down, but was knocked down instead.

"It was an all-around good game," summed up Ratcliff of the Vikings' total team effort. Offensively, four backs carried for 31 (Pettit), 29 (Graf), 26 (Alden) and 20 (Whiteley).

The Pirates gave up 189 yards while being held to just 92.

"We didn't play as a team," said Herstedt. "Year in and year out we don't play well against Fremd."

In other words, the Pirates were defensed to death again.



PAYOFF PITCH. Fremd's Mark Pettit, son of Black Hawk hockey announcer Lloyd Pettit, cuts loose a bomb to Terry Whiteley in the second quarter at Palatine. Whiteley turned the pass into a 55-yard scoring play which was the difference in the cross-town clash, 7-0. Providing the protection are Joe Alden (44) and Rich Gillette (55) as Pirates Jeff Arhart (65) and Bill Chuipek put on the rush. (Photo by Tom Grieger)

Arlington Tips Rolling Meadows, 14-7

The 'Old' Wins Out Over The 'New', 14-7

by KEITH REINHARD

How do you beat a team that's tough on defense?

Arlington had the answer ready for that question Friday night. Use one shocking defensive play.

The Cardinals produced one in the fourth quarter and parlayed it into a 14-7 triumph over Rolling Meadows in an emotion-packed contest on the Mustang grid iron.

It was a collision of the oldest and newest members of the Mid-Suburban League and for a while, after a totally Card-dominated first half, it appeared as if the defensive demons from Meadows might be able to better the old masters at their own game.

That's when the shocker occurred. On the 12th of a long procession of punt plays during the cold, rainy evening, Dave Kubik raced in to block the Mustang kick near midfield.

Greg Hauptly latched on to the loose pigskin and rambled 51 yards to break open a 7-7 deadlock, stop a two-game Arlington losing skid, and issue upstart Meadows only their second setback in six contests this season.

"It was a missed assignment," shrugged a drained Mustang coach Angie Barro in the dressing room afterwards. "I can't even blame it on the weather. Someone up front just missed a block and they shot in there too quick for the punter to get the kick away."

According to Arlington mentor Bob Walther, however, the big play was tplanned that way. "The touchdown was a bonus, of course, but the blocked punt itself came off the way we wanted it to." bonus, of course, but the blocked punt itself came off the way we wanted it to."

Whatever the situation, the result was to throw a railroad tie across the fourth quarter victory route of the inspired Rolling Meadows gang. After a lifeless first half attack, Barro's boys came from behind to knot things up in the third quarter on Pat Geegan's nifty 10-yard run.

And in a game where field position was of prime importance, the hosts held the upper hand going into the fourth stanza. They were ready to drop a punt down inside Arlington's ten-yard stripe when the Kubik-Hauptly tandem abruptly changed the course of the game.

"There's no doubt we had the momentum in our favor when that kick was blocked," stated the Mustang coach. "The first half was a nightmare as far as field position went. We had our backs against the wall everytime we had the ball and our offense never could open up."

Dave Kubik

Gregg Hauptly

In the meantime, on two successive opening period drives, the guests moved closer and closer to the goal line. Arlington was on the Meadows two-yard line in fact when they fumbled and George Kozian recovered for the Mustangs to thwart one scoring march.

It didn't really matter much. The Cards held and Rolling Meadows was only able to punt the ball back out to the 32. One play later, to open the second period, Steve Frankovic cut through a hole off right tackle and raced 28 yards down to the one.

Frankovic went through the same gap on his next try to ring up the score. Jeff Cleveland then converted and it was a 7-0 contest right up into intermission.

By intermission, Meadows had accumulated exactly zero first downs, had rushed for 10 yards and passed for eight. After the break, they turned the tables on the Cardinals though, and held them to a miserly eight yards rushing over the final two periods.

"They actually only dominated the third quarter," Walther commented. "We let down just a bit after the half and they were ready to take advantage of it."

In the third quarter the visitors initiated a drive first. It was helped along by a faked punt play and a Dave Sherrow to Bobby Harth pass netting 19 yards but eventually fizzled within 20 yards of paydirt on Arlington's second of three lost fumbles during the game.

Meadows then had a march interrupted just beyond midfield when Steve Klein intercepted a Bill Geegan pass. Two plays later it was back in the hands of the hosts however when Jim Freres pounced on the third Card miscue.

That was at the Arlington 40. Joe Brightwell ate away 10 yards on one dash and Geegan passed to Gordy Johnson for 12 more. Finally Pat Geegan charged up the middle, spinning off a couple of tackles to score and Stan Hilty added the extra point kick to make it a 7-7 game.

In the fourth period, as attested to by Walter, neither side really held the upper hand. The constant rain and heavy ground traffic had turned the field into a quagmire of mud and only one first down was recorded for either side the rest of the way.

"It was a great team victory," the Cardinal coach summed up. "We were opportunists when the breaks came along but they only happened because the kids made them happen. Our defense scored for us and our offense scored for us so the credit for the win has to be spread all the way around."

"They gave us all we wanted though. Kids like (Jack) Lloyd, (Don) Bohac and (Larry) Pressl put on a fantastic rush. For all the pressure Meadows applied, a victory like this is well appreciated."

State-Ranked Lions Keep Rolling

by LARRY EVERHART

And then there were four.

Four games left for St. Viator to win, after getting through the first six unblemished, as the Lions strongly bid to become the third Herald area football team in the last decade to finish the season with a perfect record.

No. 6 was a methodical, wear-'em-down, 28-0 blanking of Notre Dame in a cold Friday night drizzle at Elk Grove. It left St. Viator 4-0 in the East Division of the Suburban Catholic League (Notre Dame is 2-2) and probably at least third in the state (where they were ranked in one poll going into the Notre Dame clash).

The Lions started slowly in the downpour, which continued steadily throughout the evening, and led only 7-0 late in the third quarter. But it was only a matter of time until the count mounted, and there was never any doubt who was superior.

As was true in the first five Lion victories, you hardly know where to begin in handing out accolades. Everybody — and that means everybody — was exceptional.

John Andejeski seemed to be in on every other tackle. Ralph Bosch played his usual steady, consistent game on defense. Joe Peifer and Ken Smith also stood out on this unit.

But as defensive coach Sal Nuccio pointed out, "We wouldn't have shut them out without a real team effort." St. Viator got the same kind of effort on defense five days earlier when it blanked high-powered Holy Cross' offense (whose only points were scored on defense). Head coach Jim Lyne added that the defense again was "magnificent."

Tom Chapman

John Andejeski

Thus the defense deserved as much credit as the offense — although the defenders usually take a back seat in publicity to quarterback Stan Bobowski, an all-state candiate.

But there's no way you can slight Bobowski, his backfield cohorts, and his brilliant offensive line, either. It's not easy to score 28 points in the rain against a defense as rugged as Notre Dame's.

"Bobowski played as good a game as he's ever played in his life," marveled Lyne, whose main difficulty with Stan is finding enough superlatives to describe him each week.

"He spotted things and ran plays that we didn't even think of. At the half he told me that he couldn't pass and that he was afraid to pitch out. The footing was terrible. But we were leading, so we just stayed on the ground."

Bobowski threw only three passes but completed two, one for a 34-yard touchdown to Tom Chapman that gave the Lions an all-important 7-0 lead at halftime.

And Stan was the only guy having any consistent success running the ball. One of the best rushing quarterbacks in the state, Bobo traversed 14 times for 76 yards — and that's after subtracting his five losses.

Other than his achievements, here's the kind of night it was, thanks to the weatherman:

• Notre Dame gained 58 yards all night — minus 15 in the second half.

• St. Viator's three starting backs besides Stan Bobowski, usually prolific ground-gainers, combined for just 50 yards.

• Notre Dame quarterbacks went backwards on 11 of 17 carries.

• Eleven of the first 24 plays of the game for both teams traveled in the wrong direction.

In spite of the inclement weather, though, Viator never fumbled once. (That's the kind of thing championship teams are made of). Notre Dame fumbled three times, lost one, and had two passes intercepted.

In the first quarter neither team could do much except try not to fumble. Notre Dame was unsuccessful at this, Mike Scott pouncing on a Don bobble, and the Lions moved 45 yards in eight plays for the first score on the pass to Chapman.

It had to be a perfect throw and a fine catch — which it was, Chapman taking the ball in full stride while crossing the goal line.

Frank Cliggett followed with the first of four perfect conversion kicks.

Notre Dame mounted its only serious threat late in the second quarter, moving 72 yards in 12 plays to the Lions' 13, but the defense was equal to the challenge as Jim Bucaro intercepted a pass in the end zone.

St. Viator marched 75 yards in 10 plays in the third quarter to score. The big plays were a 21-yard advance by Stan on a bootleg after fine faking, a 16-yard gain by Tom Maher on a last-second pitchout, and a 23-yard cutback run by

Explodes For 5 Touchdowns In 13 Minutes

South Leader Elk Grove Roars To Easy 45-6 Triumph

by ART MUGALIAN

The wind and rain swept the playing field at Conant Friday night and the Elk Grove Grenadiers swept past Ralph Losee's Cougars 45-6, for their sixth straight victory and fifth in conference play.

The Grenadiers, under Coach Don Schnake, demonstrated to a large Conant crowd why they rank ninth in the state as they scored five touchdowns in the first 13 minutes of action.

The ground attack was Elk Grove's chief weapon as usual. Their runners piled up 286 yards, led by Tony Tringali who racked up 88, including two TD gallops. The workhorse of the Grenadier backfield, league rushing leader Jeff Schroeder, carried only a dozen times for 75 yards and one touchdown.

Coach Schnake rested Schroeder frequently. He also let starting quarterback Jeff Stewart watch the entire second half from the bench. "No sense exposing them," Don remarked later.

The rain, which began as a light mist and developed into a steady drizzle, proved irritating to spectators and players alike. Schnake agreed that the rain was a factor, but it certainly did not bother his team at the beginning.

Schroeder went off tackle twice the first time the Grens had the ball, for 9 and 14 yards each, and quickly Elk Grove led 7-0 as Gary Adams kicked the first of six straight extra points.

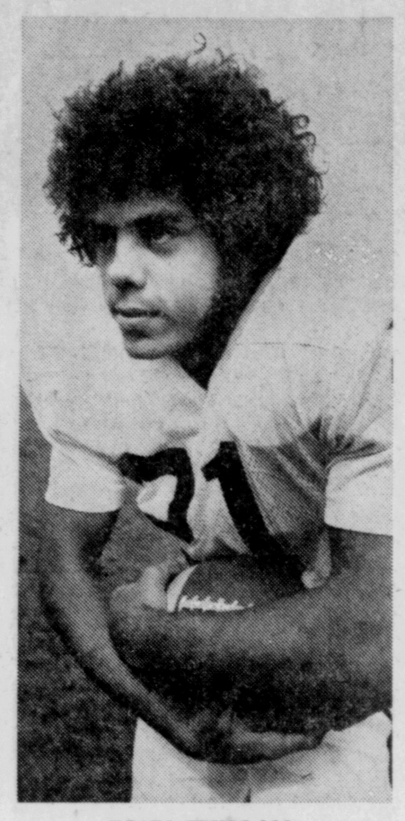
A few moments later Stewart threw on third down and found Bill Butler wide open over the middle. The big end took it in for a 59-yard TD. It was to be Stewart's only pass attempt. His substitute, Mike Karaffa, was also 1-for-1 in the aerial department.

Stewart personally took charge on the next drive, running on the keeper for gains of 10, 17, and finally for the TD, 10 yards. They were the only running attempts for the versatile QB who is among the conference leaders in rushing.

Meanwhile, the Elk Grove defense was performing its usual outstanding duty. After forcing Conant to punt the first three times on offense, the Gren defenders then employed a quicker form of turnover. Frank Bavaro intercepted a Mike Atkocaitis pass and Tim Hurley, inside of a minute, picked off a pass and recovered a fumble. Two of these three Cougar miscues were converted into Elk Grove scores.

Halfback Tringali, a smallish but tough 160-pounder, rambled for 30-and 39-yard touchdowns to close out the first half scoring. Tringali took much of the pressure off Schroeder by carrying the ball 12 times.

Quarterback Karaffa led Elk Grove to their final TD on the opening march of the second half. After Hurley returned a short kickoff for 50 yards to the Cougar 30, Schroeder and Tringali took turns running into the middle until the ball rested at the 5. From there, Karaffa tallied on the QB draw.



TONY TRINGALI

Coach Schnake liked what he saw of senior Karaffa. "It's one of those things," he lamented, pointing out that Karaffa has played his high school career in Stewart's shadow.

Conant's offense had a frustrating night against the tough weather conditions and the tougher Elk Grove defenders. The rain and wind worked against the pass-oriented Cougar attack as several receivers dropped Atkocaitis tosses. The little QB also had trouble hanging onto the slick pigskin. Twice the ball slipped from his hand, ruled once an incomplete pass and once a fumble.

When Atkocaitis firmed up his grip to throw, he was less than moderately successful. He completed eight of 23 passes, good for 135 yards, but he threw three interceptions. In addition, he was sacked six times for 58 yards. Atkocaitis' chief antagonists were Gary Lundeen, Dan Mincy, and Keith Moore, three Grenadiers who seemed to chase him everywhere.

Elk Grove's final addition to the scoreboard came after a late fourth quarter interception by Tom DeWitt. Adams, a soccer-style place kicker, booted a field goal from 32 yards out. Earlier in the half, Adams narrowly missed a 44-yard attempt.

Conant took the ensuing kickoff and moved for their lone score. Atkocaitis found fullback Barry Morse for three passes, two of them finely executed screen plays. On the last one, Morse broke two tackles and found the end zone from 23 yards out. With 35 seconds all that remained, Cougar fans cheered heartily.

If the Conant crowd had anything else to cheer about, it was the overall performance of Morse. The 190-pounder rushed for 47 yards and caught four passes for 92 more. He was virtually the entire Conant offense.

Coach Schnake of Elk Grove had seen his team surpass one mark — the victory at Conant Friday was their 11th straight in Mid-Suburban conference play. That's a record.

The defending champ Grenadiers have been proving their merit each week now for six weeks. They have two more games before the "Super Bowl." All they need is one victory to clinch a division title.

Coach Schnake wants to play each game as it comes. He knows what can happen to a good team if it starts looking ahead.

"Every game is a big game," the coach said.

It was more than a platitude. It was a warning.

Forest View Bounces Back With Conquest Of Knights

by MARV PRELLBERG

The Prospect Knights charged into the Forest View Falcons' hunting grounds last Friday night hoping to bag its limit of Falcon prey.

After some hours of stalking, scheming and battling the flock of Falcons, in what best could be described as duck hunting weather, the Knights had to admit defeat and return to their own hunting grounds a group of unhappy warriors.

The Forest View varsity gridders had foiled the Knight dreams of success by virtue of a 30-13 victory over the visitors in a South Division MSL clash.

It was an important triumph for coach Paul Jordan's eleven. The game was a morale test for his Falcon squad, as he had spent the week in attempting to rebuild the team's confidence after his unit had been badly beaten in a key game with Elk Grove the prior weekend.

The Forest View eleven passed the morale test with flying colors in garnering this 30-13 win. It also kept its remote, but mathematically possible chances alive of overtaking front runner Elk Grove in the race for the South Division title.

The loss was a big disappointment for Coach Don Williams' Prospect gridders. The Knights had come to life the prior week and had tasted its first MSL victory with an impressive bombarding of a Schaumburg football team. Unlike Forest View, the Prospect squad had victory momentum going for it coming into this battle with the Falcons.

Actually the final score is deceiving. Prospect gave a better account of its football prowess than the final score would indicate. If it weren't for two costly punt return bobbles and a defensive lapse oddity, the Knights might have been able to claim their prey.

Both fumble miscues occurred on Falcon punts that were mishandled by Prospect receivers and lost to the hosts only a few yards from the Knight goal line. Each time Forest View was able to capitalize on these Prospect fumbles, turning them quickly into touchdowns.

The defensive oddity involved a sideline pass to Falcon end, Tom Mueller, who appeared to be on his way to stepping out of bounds in order to stop the clock. However, in a deceptive, foot-shuffling maneuver Mueller avoided the sideline marker and sped 52 yards down the sidelines for a tally, as a host of perplexed Prospect would-be tacklers watched in disbelief.

Take these three incidents away, and one could rationalize the final outcome to have been decidedly changed. However, while the Prospect ball carriers were having trouble hanging on to the slippery pigskin, credit must be likewise given to the Forest View runners for their ability to keep out of the fumble column. This proved to be a big factor in the Forest View victory pattern.

After a scoreless first quarter, quarterback Scott Greer marched his Prospect mates on a 64 yard drive that culminated in the first score of the game and a 7-0 Knight lead. Mixing up several quarterback option running plays along with the slashes of his backs Val Grafitti, Ray Nee and Norm Smith the Knights moved from their own 36 yard line down to the Falcon two. With 5:35 left in the half Grafitti smashed off his own left guard for a touchdown. Nee booted the conversion, and Prospect had the lead, 7-0.

Crucial fumble number one occurred a few minutes later. Mueller punted from the midfield stripe, and the ball eluded the Prospect receiver on the Prospect eight yard line. In the ensuing scramble for the ball the Falcons laid claim to it, and three plays later John Kronforst hit paydirt from two yards out. Quarterback Bill Millner lugged the ball around end for a two point conversion and Forest View had the lead 8-7.

With just under one minute left in the half Forest View had possession of the ball on its own 52 yard stripe. A quickie, sideline pass by Millner to Mueller, intending to stop the clock, was suddenly turned in to a touchdown play. Mueller caught the ball on the sideline, faked his move out of bounds, but was suddenly given the green light by both the official and the Prospect defenders to move unmolested the 52 yards for a score. Only 34 seconds remained in the half when Chuck Meade's extra point kick made the count 15-7 for Forest View.

Prospect came back quickly in the second half to narrow the gap. After taking possession on a punt on its own 38, the Knights reeled off two first downs to move the ball to the Forest View 33. On a first-and-ten play Smith dashed off tackle, shook off a Falcon tackler around the line-of-scrimmage, and raced into the endzone. A two point conversion attempt that would have tied the game failed when Nee's halfback pass fell incomplete.

That was it for Prospect. The remainder of the scoring belonged to Forest View. A 50 yard jaunt by Kronforst late in the third quarter, followed by sophomore Dave Matzl's 15 yard romp into the endzone gave the home team the insurance touchdown. Meade's kick put Forest View up 22-13.

The final Forest View score came midway in the fourth period. A Mueller punt was again fumbled by a Prospect punt returner, and John Forssander recovered it for the Falcons on the Knight six. On second down Kronforst plunged across from the two for the TD, then followed up with a two point conversion run for what proved to be the final 30-13 count.

Bobowski on the option. Stan carried five yards for the TD on the next play.

Frosting was added to the victory cake late in the last period when Bobowski scampered 19 yards to the Dons' three and Cliggett smashed over on the next play. His kick made it 21-0.

Moments later the now-desperate Dons forked over the ball on downs on their 13. Bobowski reversed his field and scrambled into the end zone on the next play but the score was nullified by a penalty.

But the undaunted Lions scored immediately anyway on a pretty 18-yard jaunt by reserve back Bernie Borschke.

Rick O'Donnell picked off a long pass on the first play after the kickoff and returned 29 yards to the Notre Dame 19. Sub quarterback Bucaro plunged a yard over the goal line on the last play, but the score was wiped out by another penalty.

"It was a really important game for us," summed up Lyne. "We had to get ready in a hurry for a Friday night game after a big Sunday one. The kids were happier and more excited after this one. After last week's game they had it in the back of their minds that they still had to play Notre Dame tonight."

So another big challenge is crossed off the schedule. And even people outside this area are starting to think of St. Viator as quite possibly the very best high school football team in Illinois.

No team scores were kept in the freshman meet so that every school could run as many boys as it wanted. Steve Lind of Conant was the winner with 11:08 for two miles, Mike Moran of Schaumburg was three seconds back, and Jeff Olson of Conant was third. After Quigley closed the gap with a goal, Paul Vrtis pushed in a shot to once again show a two goal margin. Bill Hogan skated the puck the entire length of the ice and scored a goal while under extreme pressure. Fremd's football team must have been bathed in glue before each outing in 1969. Over an entire seven-game conference schedule coach Al Ratcliffe's Vikings lost a total of just one fumble.

Hankel's 7th Paces Harper

Hawk Runners 6th In Invitational

Harper, suffering a letdown after finishing its meet season unbeaten, "didn't run well" according to coach Bob Nolan in finishing sixth in the 19-team DuPage Invitational Saturday.

On a hilly course that was made slow and sloppy by steady rain, Harper placed only one runner in the top 20. There were about 140 runners in all.

Ron Hankel, formerly of Prospect High, was the only Hawk up to par with seventh place on a fine 21:41 time for four miles. Bill Bates finished 23rd, Mike DeLaBruere 33rd, John Geary 57th, and Larry Cyrier 83rd. Tom Klinker and Brian Rehman also ran for the Hawks.

Haskell Institute, an Indian college, won the meet by narrowly edging Vincennes (Ind.) U., last year's national junior college champion. Wright of Chicago, with fourth place, was the only team in Harper's Region which finished higher than the Hawks.

Harper had turned in another fine performance last week in easily defeating Lake County and Mayfair in a double dual at Lake County. The Hawks ended up with a 7-0 Skyway Conference record (9-0 overall), winning the conference for the third straight year and extending their two-year dual-meet winning streak to 25.

Scores over the four-mile course were 17-39 over Lake County and 15-40 over Mayfair.

It was DeLaBruere who led Harper in this meet with the best time of the week, 21:27. Hankel checked in with 21:43, Bates had 22-even, Geary 23:49, Klinker 23:50 and Rehman was 16th. Harper placed five of the top six men.

The biggest meet of the season — the one Harper has been pointing at all along — comes up this Saturday. It's the Region IV showdown at Springfield. DuPage has ruled the region (the national qualifying meet) for the past two seasons with Harper second last year. But the Hawks have their best team yet and appear to have a good chance to win it.

Arlington Tops Prospect For Girls Tennis Crown

Arlington, always a tennis power in boys competition, showed its equal strength in girls play last week at the Mid-Suburban Conference championship at Prospect.

The two winners of their respective divisions in the MSL met on a very cool afternoon with Arlington winning the title 4-2-1. The final match ended in a tie because of darkness.

Arlington, coached by Mary Lou Hundt, was undefeated both in and out of its division for a brilliant 8-0 record. Pacing the fine season were Clare Gates at first singles, Jean Condon at second and Nancy Cunningham at third.

Doing the job in doubles were Mary Baines and Nancy Condon, Dianne DeWitt and Kathy Depew and Amy Redeen and Nancy Sepp.

Prospect, coached by Sandy Pifer, was unbeaten in South Division play and holder of a 1-2 record in non-divisional action. Starring in singles for the runnerup team were Robin Heileman and Carol Hoffnagle. Jane Watson and Kathy Ireland made up the top doubles team.

Finishing with the second-best record in the MSC was Palatine. Coached by Karen Bock, the runnerup team to Arlington in the North was led to a 7-1 overall mark by Leslie Winter and Beth Bals in first doubles and Carrie Carr and Colleen Clery in second doubles.

Glenbard North, second behind Prospect in the South, was led by Michelle Ennis, Gloria Green, Denise Zeman and Lisa Hess.

Other girls with fine records during this past tennis season include Peg Kennedy, first singles player from Schaumburg; Andy Laffey and Sue Whiting, both singles players from Fremd; Laura Schunk, first singles player from Hersey, and Debbie Smart, first singles player from Wheeling.

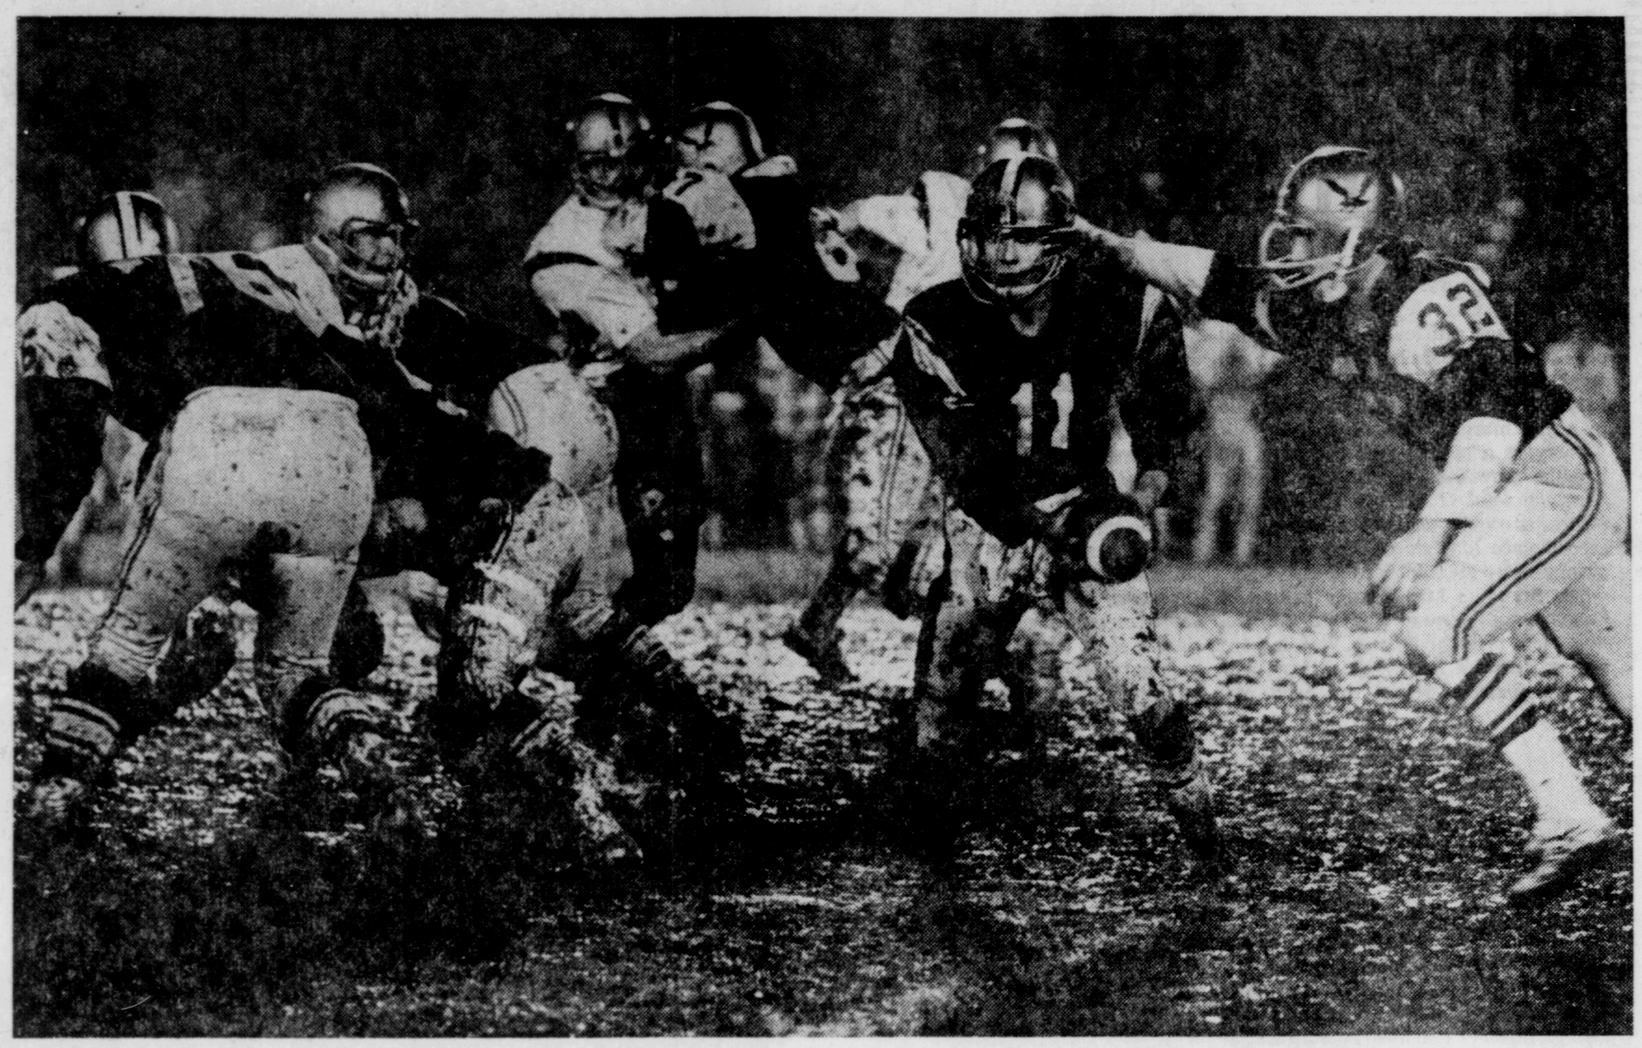
No Score But Lots Of Mud; Harper In Tie



WISHING FOR A TOUCHDOWN. Harper quarterback Ken Leonard reads the Illinois Valley defense to determine whether to hand off to fullback Jeff Johnson (32) or not. The Hawks' wishbone attack outgained the visitors 107 to 65, but it never plunged into the muddy end zone as the game ended 0-0. Leonhard, surprisingly enough, passed for 31 yards in the downpour. by ART MUGALIAN

Try to recall the worst "mudder" you ever saw. Then imagine it even worse.

Harper "hosted" winless Illinois Valley Community College at Rolling Meadows Saturday night and the mud, slop, slime, and ooze were everywhere, thanks to a rain that fell all day and through most of the game.

The mud coverd the players and their uniforms so completely that not only were the jersey numbers unreadable after a short time, it was almost impossible to distinguish the opposing teams.

There was mud everywhere. Only mud. No scoring. The Hawks and the Apaches waded around for 60 minutes excavating the field, running up a huge laundry bill, and generally having a good time. But despite a couple threats by Harper, the teams deadlocked at 0-0.

The football game was so thoroughly dominated by the mud that the Apaches totaled only 65 yards all night. Harper didn't do much better with 107. There were 13 punts and three lost fumbles. Illinois Valley never slithered inside the Hawk 35.

Harper coach John Eliasik took the game in stride. "You expect mistakes in a game like this," he remarked after the mud had subsided. "We didn't make any more mistakes than another team would have."

The Hawks had one outstanding chance to score and it came the first time they got the ball in the second half. Aided by a roughing the punter infraction against the Apaches, Harper drove all the way to the one yard line, only to be stopped. Illinois Valley's goal line stand savd the shutout.

Quarterback Ken Leonard called the whole game for Harper and he stayed mostly on the ground. Coach Eliasik had to revise his plan of attack when he saw the field. "This obviously limits your offense," he said, afterward. "The game plan has to be changed."

The Harper coach had to rely mainly on a running game with a limited passing attack worked in. "You have to pick your spots," Eliasik noted, referring to the element of surprise in the forward pass. Leonard completed five passes in the slop good for three first downs.

Harper's defense put on its most awesome statistical show of the season in holding the Apaches to only three first downs. Early in the fourth quarter the defense gave the Hawks their last big opportunity to score when linebacker Barry O'Donnell recovered a fumble on the Valley 14. But the Apache defenders held again.

The crowd came to life midway through the second quarter when it appeared that Harper's Denny Stohl had scored a six-pointer. A Hawk punt slipped through the hands of the Apache receiver at the 14 yard line and Stohl carried it in for an apparent TD. However, the officials ruled it a muff and not a fumble, and although possession belonged to Stohl, he could not advance. One play later, the Hawks lost the ball on a fumble.

Both teams were battling away for the victory right up to the final gun. Twice in the fourth quarter Harper got within field goal range for Curt Horstman. Both attempts were from 42 yards, but the first was a fake on which Bob Jorgensen threw an incomplete pass. The second time, Horstman's try was short.

With seconds to go in the game, Ron Wey tried a 52 yard field goal for the Apaches. A last-second field goal for Illinois Valley beat Harper last year, but not again. It fell short. The Hawks called a time out for one more play, but it went nowhere.

Coach Eliasik praised his offensive unit, something he has not done too much this year. It was special praise, considering they couldn't score. "We moved the ball," he said. "That's a tribute to them. They had continuity."

The coach gave them credit for fighting playing conditions. "The pressure is always on the offense," he commented, adding that the slop made it especially so.

As for Illinois Valley, Eliasik said: "They had poor field position. We kept the pressure on them."

They weren't able to get out of their mudhole.

Coach Eliasik felt that his team was the better of the two. "On a dry field we would have won," he predicted. "We had the speed."

The playing conditions were termed in various ways before the evening was through, several of them unprintable. But Eliasik perhaps expressed it best when he said, "It's the equalizer."

That score should read: Zero-Mud-Zero. Mud-Zero.

BANTAMS WIN, 11-1

The Tri-City Blues dropped an 11-1 decision to the Bantams as goalie John Roth, Brian Locker and Jim McGuire were too much to handle. The latter two scored a pair of goals each with other scores coming from Bob Bettes, Mark Butler, Jerry Dudziak, Jeff Gardner, John Otzen, Rick Palmer and Doug Pelsue.

MIDGETS VICTORIOUS, 3-2

Santellis pace the Midgets with two goals with Retzer slapping in one. Maddox was strong in goal.

PARK RIDGE STOPS MIDGETS, 5-3

Going against a team made up of several players from last year's state championship team, the Midgets managed to get two good periods out of goalie Maddox, but the second period was the heartbreaker. McGuire, Hudeck and Weber socked in goals.

JUVENILES WIN 2

After clobbering Tri-Cities 13-0 behind the four goals of Retzer and three each by Glander and Brawley, the Juveniles blanked Palatine, 4-0. Also scoring in the bigger shutout were Fitten, Hendry and Lear.

Harper Golfers 3rd In Skyway

The elements were not predictable, but Lake County was.

This college golf team which plays out of Grayslake disdained the cold and windy weather at Mundelein's Village Links to win the Skyway Conference title by a wide margin Friday.

Carrying a perfect dual record of 7-0 into the showdown, the Lancers fired a four-man total of 311 over the par 72, 6400-yard course, 19 strokes better than second-place Mayfair of Chicago and 25 swings better than Harper College.

The first five Lake County golfers of Coach Doug Sherman captured the first five spots individually, too. Leading the way was Chuck Irons with a three-over 75. He birdied the first two holes and eagled the seventh before slipping to even par on the front nine.

Posting the other Lake County scores were Buffalo Grove's Bob Winter (77), Don Vanderventer (79), Arlington Heights' Chris Marszalek (80) and Bruce Johnson (80). One of the latter scores was thrown out.

"That was upsetting," said Harper coach Roger Bechtold of his team's third-place showing, the first time the Hawks have dropped below the top two in three years. "I thought we'd finished in second or tied for second, but we still have another chance to shoot fairly well in the state tournament (Region IV this coming weekend)."

Harper shot a 336 behind the play of Mike Sutton and Frank Fenton who registered 83s. Also counting in the final total were John Hansen (84) and Scott McMillion (86). The latter was coming back from a finger injury earlier in the season.

"That wind was really bad," said Bechtold. "It was constant. With that cold it really made it rough.

"Our conference looks pretty good down there," he continued, switching the discussion to Region IV where Lake County is favored to win again. "We got and Mayfair's got a good shot at it. I'm talking about second."

Hersey In Romp

ground this time, Zakula scrambled for five before halfback Mark Krause rambled for 10 down to the six. Scott Miesfeldt, the game's leading rusher with 92 yards in 14 carries, ate up half of the real estate before Zakula executed the option for a three-yard romp to paydirt.

A short Wheeling punt (the Wildcats were without the benefit of a first down through the entire first quarter) put Hersey back in business at the 27 with just :40 remaining.

But it was plenty of time for Zakula to dance for nine yards on a quarterback option and then throw to Friel on the very next play from 13 yards away to complete the 24-0 first-quarter bonanza.

Both teams were on a virtual treadmill between the 20 yard lines during the second quarter, but Wheeling put its offense in gear with under two minutes to play in the half.

Casting off from their own 21, the Wildcats relied on a nine-yard jaunt by Ken Smith, a perfectly-thrown 24-yard bomb from 'Cat quarterback Jim Stoik to runningback Jack Damore and another six-yard bullet from Stoik to split end Doug Groot to earn a fresh set of downs at the Hersey 16.

It was all the room Smith needed to break two tackles and dent the scoreboard for Wheeling, 24-7. Had the 'Cats received a little luck they had coming before the half had elapsed, the momentum may have shifted and a potentially exciting ball game could have been in the making.

By the time it took to subtract seven from 24 to find out Wheeling still trailed by 17, Hersey's transfer standout Tom Vetta was flashing down the sidelines with the ensuing kickoff for a 72-yard Wheeling backbreaker that enabled the Huskies to carry a comfortable 32-7 advantage down to the lockerroom at intermission.

Miesfeldt added a two-yard plunge for a score early in the third stanza and capped the Husky scoring with a nifty 31-yard scamper in the fourth to sandwich Wheeling's seven-point thrust on the board when Stoik hit Damore on a 12-yard pattern.

The triumph, coupled by losses to both Rolling Meadows and Palatine, boosted Hersey into sole possession atop the Mid-Suburban League North Division standings at 4-1.

Arlington, Fremd, Rolling Meadows and Palatine comprise a four-way tie for second place as each owns a 3-2 slate with Wheeling still winless in league play at 0-5.

It could be Hersey's hungry enough for a rematch with Elk Grove in the playoffs.

HARD KNOCK. Even though Schaumburg quarterback Dave Hill (dark jersey) has already released the football, that doesn't spare him from taking a rap from Glenbard North's Bill Bibby (24). The Saxons more than doubled the Panthers' total in yardage but still lost 7-0 because of four lost fumbles, three in the fourth quarter. (Photo by Mike Seeling)

Forget This One; Saxons Fall To Glenbard

by LARRY EVERHART

Let's be kind and just say the Schaumburg-Glenbard North game in the rain and cold Saturday afternoon will not go down as one of the classic prep gridiron battles.

The sooner the Saxons can forget the 7-0 loss, the better. The only thing it will be remembered for is futility — and by those with a sense of humor.

There isn't much more you can say about a game which saw visiting Glenbard get only two first downs all day (one by penalty) and still win; each team complete just one pass (Glenbard's went for the only score); a total of 16 fumbles and 12 punts.

The loss had to hurt Schaumburg even more than an ordinary defeat for two reasons. Glenbard North, perennial doormat of the Mid-Suburban League, figured to be the team most likely for Schaumburg to beat this season.

And what must eat at the Saxons even more is that they outplayed the Panthers most of the afternoon (even though not playing very well), only to see their scoring opportunities go the way of the water and mud around the field . . . down the drain.

The hosts managed six first downs to the guests' two and outgained Glenbard on the ground by a healthy margin of 109 yards to 24 — and in total yardage by 121 to 58.

Yet, as many a coach has pointed out, statistics don't win games. And the Schaumburg plight can be easily explained by a quick glance at just one category — fumbles. The Saxons did so seven times, losing four as the slippery pigskin was as hard to hang on to as a greased pig. Glenbard bobbled the ball even more, nine times, but lost it only twice.

Just one quick play early in the second quarter was all that was needed for the upstart Panthers to achieve a feat they had never before done in five years of varsity football — win two games in a row (they had stunned Conant 26-6 the previous Saturday). Glenbard in the last two weeks has equalled its total of league victories for the previous four seasons.

The telltale maneuver was a 34-yard pass from junior quarterback Daryl Feltes to junior back Gary Shaw, and it may have been the only perfectly-executed play of the day.

Schaumburg, which completed only one of nine passes, had better success on the ground — if only the fumbles hadn't intervened. Diminutive (5-4, 130 pounds) junior halfback Wayne Morgan showed you don't have to be big to be a workhorse, carrying the ball 30 times (three short of the league record) for 77 yards. And fullback Andy Jones at times ran hard also.

But The Saxons committed football suicide by fumbling four of the last five times it had the ball, losing three of those to the eager visitors. In the fourth quarter it seemed generous Glenbard was saying, "Here, take the game," and Schaumburg kept replying, "No, no, no . . . you can have it."

Most of the game was played near midfield until the fourth quarter when the Saxons finally managed their deepest penetration to that point — to the Glenbard 27. But they were stopped cold on fourth and two.

The last two possessions for Schaumburg climaxed the frustration. First the cooperative Panthers, after a bad snap on a punt attempt, handed the Saxons the ball on the Glenbard 20. But a third-and-two play went nowhere and on fourth down Schaumburg fumbled away the ball.

Glenbard fumbled it right back on their own 18 but after two incompletions, the Saxons again returned the favor on the final play.

The best thing Schaumburg can say about the game is that it's over and done with.

five from the district gave them 11 and a share of 11th position with New Trier West.

Rita Sorrenti advanced the farthest of the Palatine singles players. She defeated Peoria Manual's Lori Modlin before losing to Oak Park's super Sue. Beth Bals dropped her opener to Moline United Township's Kyle Allee.

Both of Palatine's doubles team enjoyed some success. The Leslie Winters-Colleen Clery combination beat Libertyville's Sue Kemmer and Gloria Westfall and Glenbard East's Gayle Luehr and Evie Ortega before losing to Moline's Monique Johnson and Sarah Carlson.

Carrie Carr and Cathy Aldana won their opener for Palatine against Karen O'Sullivan and Tina Parsons of Rich East. Then they lost to Arlington's Baines and Dewitt.

The Maine West doubles team of Barb Swarz and Maureen Brock also fell before the Arlington team. However, prior to that final match, they did defeat Lockport Central's Linda McLaren and Barb Wade and also Bishop McNamara's Pat Kranz and Shawn O'Connor.

The other Maine team of Monica Polacek and Karen Neetz dropped their opener to Rock Island's Zwer and Foss, the eventual state champs.

Kim Tuttle lost her first round match to Kathie Holmes of United Township and Kathy Zrykowski, her Maine teammate, also was ousted in the opening round by Pam Yardley of Tinley Park.

Fremd — a 21st place finisher with eight points to tie Peoria Manual, Roxana and Champaign Central — was paced by Andrea Laffey and Sue Whiting. Andrea defeated both Maine South's Annette Charuk and Lyons' Nancy Van Nest before losing to Arlington's Gates.

Sue, seeded seventh, stopped Dixon's Chris Hubbs and Peoria Manual's Loretta Bardezbanian before losing to Thornwood's state runnerup.

Conant — which tied for 40th with Niles West, Dixon, United Township, Waukegan, Wheaton, Glenbard East and Libertyville — saw its doubles team of Ester Kaplan and Audrey Schmidt lose to Niles West's Shelly Kahalnik and Donna Tarrson in the first round.

"I think it went great," said Coach Hundt following the late finals on Saturday. "I learned a lot and am very pleased with the way it turned out.

"We couldn't have asked for anything better," she said of the River Trails hospitality. "They bent over backwards for us."

Arlington really shared the hosting chores on Friday. Coach Hundt was quick to point that out when she said:

"The only school that got recognition was Arlington High School. The people at Prospect, Hersey and Wheeling put as much work in on Friday as we did."

WHO SAVES STAMPS? According to a study by a Princeton research firm, only two per cent more women than men do, although 17 per cent fewer men say they like trading stamps. People in the 45 to 54 age groups are the most avid stamp savers, with those 55 and over in second place.

Trading Stamps

Stamps And The Retailer

by MONICA WILCH
(First of two parts)

Are trading stamps really a rip-off, as many consumers complain?

Not necessarily.

The consumer in the end is probably supporting the trading stamp structure, but in a very indirect way, much as the taxpayer, in the long run, supports the U. S. defense program, although it would be nearly impossible to trace the cost of a new B-52 back to John Doe's taxes.

And this comparison is not at all unrealistic, considering that Sperry and Hutchinson, the largest trading stamp company, annually prints four times the number of postage stamps issued by the U.S. Post Office — more than 150 billion "green stamps."

But, to say that a consumer who patronizes a store that gives stamps is paying for the stamps through higher prices is an oversimplification that can easily be refuted.

IF ANYBODY is being drained by the stamp syndrome, it's the retailer, who must constantly siphon off an ever-increasing amount of his profits to the stamp company in order to provide what his customers demand.

"Merchants don't want us," said Ron Bupp, district manager of Sperry and Hutchinson. "But their customers do." The president of the National Tea Co. told Fortune magazine, "We fought stamps with everything we had before we capitulated. But women believe in them . . ."

Stamps are a "promotional narcotic" in the opinion of William Newby, public relations director at the Jewel Tea Co., which does not give stamps. "Once you start giving stamps, you can't stop giving them," Newby said.

The way it works is that a retailer pays S&H a license fee to use the stamps. This fee amounts to 2½ per cent of the retailer's gross volume. As his volume increases — which is the purpose of the stamps — the fee increases proportionately. This cost, along with other advertising and overhead, the retailer must pay out of his gross profits. As his costs go up and his margin of profit decreases, he might be tempted to raise his prices.

BUT IT WOULD quickly become obvious if a stamp-giving retailer had higher prices than his competitors, Bupp said, and most consumers would not tolerate it, even for green stamps. He pointed to the many studies by government, universities and private research organizations which have indicated that there is no difference between prices in stamp and non-stamp stores.

One such study, by Louis Harris, focused on prices in the Chicago food market before and after stamps were introduced and concluded that the change in prices was exactly the same for both stamp and non-stamp stores. Another study, by Prof. Neil M. Ford at the University of Wisconsin, published in 1970, concluded that stamps have no effect on gasoline prices.

Moreover, if a store drops stamps, as some have done recently, it does not necessarily result in reduced prices. It is done to check erosion of the retailer's profit margin, or to free funds for other purposes — perhaps to channel that money into other kinds of advertising and promotion. Prof. Harold W. Fox of Northern Illinois University said in his book, "The Economics of Trading Stamps," that when stamps are discontinued, they are not likely to be replaced by lasting price reductions.

BUT, JEWEL'S Newby counters, stamps are "a fixed cost that is double the store's net profit." And the food industry, which accounts for 55 per cent of stamp revenue, this year realized a net profit of less than one per cent.

"Stamps differ from other promotional devices in their direct cost relation to sales," Newby said. "While with print and media advertising the cost goes down as sales go up, with stamps the cost goes up as sales go up." He added that the necessity of continuing stamps limits the flexibility of a store's promotional program. This is an "added cost of doing business which has to be reflected in product price," he said.

That stamps are an additional cost to retailers is ironically emphasized in an S&H brochure, which points out that stamps are not a substitute for advertising, but that they "are something to be advertised."

In order to break even on his investment in stamps, a retailer with a profit of 30 per cent would need a sales volume increase of 7.1 per cent. A supermarket, with less than one per cent profit, "might need as high as a 15 per cent increase," according to S&H estimates. "A typical department store," S&H says, "might need up to six per cent more volume." In order to profit, of course, the stores must increase business even more.

WITH FOOD PRICES soaring on the wholesale as well as retail market — and with the onslaught of discount food stores — a number of super market chains have dropped stamps at least in some areas. Acme Markets, Inc. dropped S&H stamps in Philadelphia "because the company felt that stamps were no longer an effective promotional device," according to George L. Beiswinger, director of communications.

"Grand Union supermarkets stopped giving S&H stamps in the Washington, D. C., area because of the price squeeze and the 'sophisticated market,'" according to a report in the Wall Street Journal.

The Trading Stamp Institute of America reported in June that overall stamp volume has been dropping from over $900 million four years ago. In the food industry alone, stamp revenue fell $90 million, from $540 million in 1968 to $450 million in 1971. While 65 per cent of the nation's supermarkets gave stamps in 1963, by 1970 the figure was down to 40 per cent.

THE INSTITUTE blames the economy and discount food stores. In 1971 the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. experienced its worst fiscal year since the company went public in 1968. In a last ditch effort to save itself from ruin, the largest food store chain in the country began converting to the discount "WEO" format, a low-profit high-volume concept.

According to Business Week, the WEO stores are operating on a 9 to 13 per cent profit margin, while non-discount stores have a 21 per cent profit margin. This has precipitated a food war, with stamps a victim in some cases.

But the outlook for S&H is still infinitely better than it is for A&P. In the fourth quarter of last year A&P sustained a net loss of $1.6 million — and predicted a first quarter loss this year of $22 million. The company's sales are up dramatically, but the changeover has been costly and there is a question as to whether "WEO" will be able to maintain its discount prices. Meanwhile, S&H in 1971 netted some $19 million on stamps, down only a fraction from 1970.

Part II: Consumer Loyalty: The S&H Success Story

THE REDEMPTION CENTER is the end of the rainbow for stamp savers. Studies indicate that people use stamps to supplement their income, redeeming them for necessities like bedsheets, and for Christmas gifts. Overall stamp volume has been dropping the last four years.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Meeting'd To Death

"I'm being meeting'd to death!" This is the familiar November cry of those who, in September, volunteered for any number of activities. It isn't restricted to jcompulsive volunteers, or to joiners, but is a legitimate complaint of almost anyone who offered to do anything of a volunteer nature.

I have found myself in this situation frequently, but today the problem reached its dramatic height when I spent five hours in a "required" scout leader meeting that turned out to have nothing to do with the service for which I had volunteered.

I don't mean to pick on scouting. It has happened to me — in varying degrees — everywhere that I have offered to do anything. It has happened in PTA and church groups. I'm sure that others giving their time to other activities have had the same experience.

MOST PEOPLE who get involved in these kinds of service decide just how much time they have to give. Then they look to see what the job demands in terms of practice sessions, outings, or organization functions. Then they take on what they feel they can. It is after they get involved and discover that unscheduled meetings, meetings to plan meetings and meetings to rehash meetings are part of the job that they become frustrated and often say, "Never again!"

In my own case with this particular scouting incident, the job for which I had volunteered will take about an hour and a half a month. Since the troop is starting late, I will put in seven months. Seven months at one and a half hours comes out to 10½ hours. Having spent an additional five hours in a meeting today (whether relevant or not) sort of puts the actual volunteer activity in a lessened perspective.

A friend of mine, trying to recruit parental help for a PTA-sponsored safety program, was exasperated by the frequent response, "I've already put in my time. Let someone else do it."

I KNOW these people have put in their time. They volunteered and then wound up being pressured to give more time than they actually had — to meetings. It is no wonder they have had their fill.

On the way back from my meeting today, some thoughts about useless meetings in general occurred to me. One is that they too often kill spontaneous creativity — particularly when the volunteer activity involves children.

Meetings are also contributing to our paper explosion. There are minutes to be taken and reports to be filled out, mailed and filed. More meetings are recycled than waste paper, and pollution isn't as much of a problem as the endless meetings about it.

I have spent this short while wondering about the "why" of so many meetings. About the best answer I can come up with is pretty obvious to me. Meetings seem to be a good excuse not to "do."

Women's Lib In The New China

by WILBUR G. LANDREY

CANTON, China (UPI — "Women support half the sky. We earn together, and we spend together."

This is the ideal of "women's lib" in China today, as expressed by Cheng Sung-ken, a leading member of the Revolutionary Committee at the Hsinhua (New China) commune near Canton.

And on a 19-day tour of the country this summer a group of UPI executives did come to the conclusion that women in China are equal — at least in the working area.

The vast majority do the same job as men, in the factories and on the vast communal farms. Women even dress as men — or vice versa — in the universal unisex outfit seen everywhere in the country.

Fang Kui-mei is a factory worker. She has worked in textile mills since the age of 12, under the old regime and under the new. She is now 42 and makes 78 yuan ($31) a month, two yuan (80 cents) more than her husband at the Peking No. 3 textile mill in the Chinese capital.

With their three sons of 14, 12 and 9, she and her husband live in an apartment of two rooms, plus shared kitchen and a flush toilet, on the top floor of one of the three-story apartment houses on the factory grounds.

MRS. FANG works the middle shift beginning at 2:30 p.m. Her husband, Yang Shu-tang, works days. Most of the time she cooks at home for the family, although they can easily and cheaply eat at the factory canteen.

Both came to the factory in 1956 from Shantung province in northeast China where they met and married. They have taken their children back several times.

A pleasant, brown-faced woman, Mrs. Fang has decorated her living room with scenic pictures of mountains and streams along with the picture of Chairman Mao Tse-tung and one frame of family snapshots.

The room has couches and chairs, but doubles as a sleeping room. The bedroom has a bed, two wardrobes, a small dresser and a sewing machine. The kitchen has a two-gas burner and a sink supported by bricks. She shares it with another family.

The building and apartment are clean, although the floors are of cement.

What will her children do?

"Some want to be soldiers, others workers. It will depend on where they are needed."

Women factory workers can retire at the age of 50 if they wish. Men retire at 55 or 60. Pensions run up to 70 per cent of the salaries, depending on length of service.

MATERNITY LEAVE is eight weeks with full pay, and the new mother gets time off to nurse her baby.

Prof. Ling Chiao-chi is a noted woman doctor, head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Peking Capital Hospital, a leader in the birth control movement and a member of the standing committee of the National Peoples Congress.

She started at the hospital as a medical student in 1921 when it was the Peking Union Medical College run by the Rockefeller Foundation and was graduated in 1927, one of two women in a class of 16. She was at the University of Chicago in 1939-40, and her English is excellent.

A wispy, energetic woman of 71, she has 44 doctors on her staff and all but five are women, a far different situation than when she began studying medicine and women were barred from leading positions. About half the doctors in China are now women, she said.

"The women in New China are much better off," she says, her eyes sparkling. She has maintained contact with a few colleagues outside China — "More are writing me now."

IN SOOCHOW, one of the garden cities of China, 30-year-old Chen Yu-ing and her 5-year-old son live with her parents. She is an English interpreter for the China Travel Service. Her husband is an engineer in Wuhan, and they have lived apart for five years.

The correspondents of the official Hsinhua (New China) News Agency often do not take their wives when they are sent abroad.

Wei Shu-lin runs a factory. She has headed the Revolutionary Committee of 11 members at the Peking Arts and Crafts factory for the past six years. A businesslike woman in her 40s, she wears the usual white blouse and trousers. The factory makes fine art objects — jade and ivory carvings, makes lacquer ware and cloisonnerie and does traditional paintings.

Most of China's women are among the 80 per cent of the population who live in the countryside outside the cities. Traditonally, they have worked but now things are better. No longer are poor peasant girls sold in the cities as prostitues nor are they the concubines of rich landlords. The landlords are gone.

Tung Shiao-mei, 44, lives on the Tang Wan Peoples Commune half an hour's drive from Shanghai.

THERE ARE 5,400 households there and 23,000 persons.

Mrs. Tung works in tht rice fields from 7 a.m. until 11. In the afternoon, she goes back from 1 until 5:30. She remembers how it was.

Before the Communist victory in 1949, she said, her husband, Wang Chin-shu, 48, owned half an acre of his own land. They lived in a hutch in the fields, she said, and often had to eat the pumpkin mush now fed to the hogs.

In 1949, they were given another sixth of an acre, but it was all merged into the commune when communes were formed throughout China in 1958.

They have two large rooms divided into four in a long whitewashed building on one side of a lane. A kitchen and two other rooms are in another directly opposite. Their 23-year-old son has a room of his own, and their three daughters, 16, 13 and 10, share another.

"We live much, much better now," she said, standing outside their house. Her husband works in the commune brick factory.

FOR ALL THESE things, it is doubtful if women yet share real political power in China. In the Communist party political bureau, there were two women out of 25 members. One was the wife of Mao Tse-tung, Chiang Ching. The other was the wife of Defense Minister Lin Piao, Yeh Chun.

Mao has revealed that Lin was killed last September in a plane crash while seeking to escape to Russia after trying to establish a military dictatorship. Yeh Chun has not been seen since then either.

Only 12 member of the Politbureau remain, and Chiang Ching is now the only woman.

The bride's illusion veil was held by a crown of lace flowers, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis surrounded by camellia leaves.

Margaret Gruhn of Des Plaines was Janet's maid of honor, wearing a blue Irish linen dress with bodice and sleeves of white embroidered daisy appliques. She carried a handmade, large blue linen flower tied with velvet streamers.

SHARON KAY McGRATH, the bride's sister, and Marlene Pisterzi, Chicago, were bridesmaids, also in blue linen gowns with a handmade matching flower as their bouquet.

Have you noticed? The baggies are taking over. Other than the low hip huggers, there is little else from which to choose. Baggy pants are definitely a new fad but not a new style.

Some oldsters looking at the latest pant styles for young people may well think back to their youth. . . to the days of F. Scott Fitzgerald, John Held Jr. and the period when their despairing elders referred to them as "flaming youth."

The new style is the old Oxford bags, very wide with the greatest width at the foot. They've made another of their traditional comebacks this autumn with a greater surge expected for spring. (Their previous comeback was in the zoot suit of the 1940s.)

THE OXFORD bag first appeared in the '20s. And its creation was for a practical reason as well as a fashionable one. In those days knickers were very popular with the young people. But at Oxford University wearing knickers in class was banned. (Dress codes were not as relaxed then.) The students took to wearing baggy trousers over their knickers.

You can guess the happy ending. Baggies themselves became popular and the knickers, poor things, were entirely put aside.

The wide-styled pants look reached its peak in popularity (at least the first time around) in the mid-1920's.

It might be interesting to note that John Held Jr., a noted cartoonist of the day, dressed all of his male characters in baggy trousers. The girls wore flapper costumes. It wasn't as common in the '20s to see the women wearing the pants in the family. After all, they had just recently received the right to vote.

Just when you think you already have enough beauty problems, over which to worry, someone comes along and warns. . . "watch out for your hands. They are the first part of the body to show aging."

PERSONALLY IF anything on me had to grow old first, I would rather it be my hands or possibly my feet. How many people notice a wrinkled toe?

Yet if you're concerned that your hands look like they've done 70 years worth of work and you're really only 30, read on.

Aris has designed a special pair of gloves for women that are meant to be worn while sleeping. The additional hours of hand care created by these gloves are purported to help maintain a youthful appearance. . . hands only, of course.

The "sleeping beauty" gloves are fashioned from a fabric called Isotoner that is a blend of nylon and Spandex and is supposed to actually massage the hands and make them feel smoother, softer and even more supple.

IN PARTNERSHIP with the gloves and meant to be applied prior to donning them, is a special Isotoner hand cream, also developed by Aris, that interacts with the Isotoner fabric to speed up the youthful process.

You can take it from here. I'm going home to exercise and get the rest of my body into shape before I begin on my hands.

The Home Line by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I've got to get my family to stay on diets. We've always been big milk drinkers, but when I've tried skim milk they all jeer at me and turn it down. Any tricks you can suggest? —Mrs. Amos C.

Looks as if a weaning process is the main trick. Make up a batch of nonfat powdered skim milk and mix it with regular milk — starting, say, with three-fourths regular and one-fourth skim. Once you get away with that, gradually cut down on the regular milk to the point where you know you've got 'em. You might, finally, be able to end up with a mixture of skim with two per cent milk, which does have some of the fat solids. With your crowd, it would seem to be one of those inch-by-inch attacks.

Dear Dorothy: With my own grandchildren a great distance away, I feel as if I'm still important in the scheme of things by babysitting with other youngsters. First step with me always is to make a solution of water and baking soda and get a sponge for the inevitable spit-ups. — Mrs. Ann B.

Dear Dorothy: Here's an interesting addition to your "cures" for the marauding moles. Telling a friend about the windmills bit, she said she had used a method recommended by a friend. This was to put small soft-drink bottles in the mole runs, each about 16 inches apart, with two inches of the bottle top exposed. She said the wind blowing in the bottles caused just enough vibration to keep the moles away. I suppose it provides a sensation for the moles similar to that caused by the windmills. Aren't home remedies fascinating? —Priscilla J.

Yes, indeed. And don't you wonder how somebody ever thought of these things in the first place?

AAUW Used Book Sale A Browser's Delight

Tons of books are being collected, sorted, priced and arranged for viewing in preparation for the 10th annual used book sale sponsored by Arlington Heights Branch of the American Association of University Women.

The sale takes place the weekend of Oct. 27-29 in the Schaumburg Room at Woodfield Mall. Shoppers will be welcome to stop and browse through the assortment during the Mall Hours, Friday 10 to 9:30; Saturday 10 to 6; and Sunday noon to 5 p.m.

IN ADDITION to fiction and non-fiction both in hard cover and paperback, the sale will feature categories such as foreign languages, social studies, science, math, teacher guides, encyclopedias, religious, do it yourself, early additions, and children's books.

There will also be sheet music and records.

Proceeds from this sale benefit the AAUW Educational Foundation, specifically the International Fellowship Program. The Arlington Heights branch is among the largest contributors in the state to the fellowship fund, due to its book sale and other fund-raisers during the year.

THE FELLOWSHIPS provide finances for women's education at the doctoral and post-doctoral levels. Because of its international character, the organization aids both American women and foreign students, providing grants for study here and abroad.

Mrs. P. I. Schira of Palatine is chairman of the Oct. 27-29 sale.

Religion Today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

While Christians are obligated to try to share their religion with all their neighbors, some manifestations of evangelism — particularly that directed to Christianity's parent religion of Judaism — can be exceedingly bizarre and nervy.

Take, for example, that latest manifestation of Jesus Freakery, "Jews For Jesus." It can be wondered just how charitably these fence-straddling ecclesiastical exhibitionists would react to the establishment, by Sammy Davis Jr., and Elizabeth Taylor Burton, of a "Former Christians For Moses" organization, or "Jews For Jesus — Who Was Jewish."

In the New York area recently, several Jewish families received a somewhat startling letter informing them of their nomination (by "some friends") for appointment to the Advisory Board of The American Christian College, the educational endeavor of the Rev. Billy James Hargis, the rotund and generally shouting right-wing evangelist, of Tulsa, Okla.

"With the exception of American Christian College, there is not a single college in America that takes ONLY students who have already established themselves as Christians," wrote the college's Dean H. Russell Grow — to his Jewish prospects.

'You will be doing us a big favor by accepting and it will not take any of your time," added Dean Grow, reassuringly.

VERY LITTLE time indeed. For this incredible letter went right on to spell out the one duty involved in the honor or being an official advisor of American Christian College:

"Our bank account is very low at the present time and I must find approximately $35,000 to pay some overdue bills," elucidated the Dean. "If you could send us a check for $10, $25, $50, $100, or $250 today . . . Our seven-man board of regents is anxiously awaiting your reply."

If devout Jews are appalled by such methods, so indeed are Christians of integrity — as they observe the increasingly widespread degradation of honorary degrees and trustee posts to the level of barter for fund raising purposes.

THERE ARE WAYS of countering this — if enough proposed recipients of such "honors" can summon enough character to resist. As an example, one bishop received a letter informing him of the intention of Daniel Baker College (near Dallas) to award him the degree of doctor of divinity at their forthcoming commencement.

In the very next paragraph of this letter, the bishop was informed of yet another honor: he had been appointed chairman of his state's committee to raise $25,000 for Daniel Baker College.

The bishop immediately wrote back to inform the college that he would be delighted to accept both honors — with the understanding, of course, that 10 trustees of Daniel Baker College would serve as a committee to raise $100,000 for his area's mission churches — payable any time before commencement day.

He never again heard from Daniel Baker College — which subsequently went deservedly defunct.

IN NORFOLK, VA., a waterfront superintendent named William Dyson, a former pastor of several Baptist and Christian Methodist Episcopal churches, announced his establishment of the "American Academy of Clergymen," explaining that "Many are nominated but few chosen and given the opportunity to use the Academy seal."

Dyson has subsequently expressed considerable chagrin that only two dozen of the first 100 "chosen" clergy accepted the honor (at dues of $90 — for the first year).

An equally enterprising (if non-profit) methodology was developed by the Rt. Rev. Alfred Banyard, Episcopal Bishop of New Jersey. Until the Episcopal Church Annual informed him of their refusal to print such degrees, Bishop Banyard was honoring selected clergy with the degree of "Doctor of Divinity In The College of Brotherly Love."

Commented one of the bishop's more disgusted colleagues:

"D.D. — Ll.D. — S.T.D. — and now Fiddle Dee Dee!"

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have colitis and my doctor did not give me a diet. He said eat whatever I want and eliminate whatever causes trouble. I am 70 years old.

Dear Reader — I receive a lot of letters on colitis and the problem in answering them is that colitis is a general term. It literally means inflammation or irritation of the colon. This can be associated with constipation which is the most common form. These individuals improve markedly by drinking adequate amounts of water or other liquids and forming a regular habit (which doesn't mean that it is necessary every day).

I usually recommend that patients do this by drinking at least two cups of liquid at breakfast and more if they tolerate it well and then going to the bathroom immediately after breakfast and sitting for a reasonable length of time or until they feel the urge. By continuing this practice daily, many individuals will develop a more regular habit.

For this type of colitis it is important to increase the amount of roughage in the diet which includes vegetables and foods containing bulk such as cereals, with less emphasis on high calorie, low bulk foods such as sweets, candies, cakes and starch foods.

OTHER PEOPLE who are told they have colitis have an overactive colon which causes recurrent bouts of diarrhea and sometimes excessive gas formation. These individuals have a somewhat different problem and may need a bland diet often containing soft foods.

Then there are some people who have colitis or overactive colon on the basis of their intolerance to certain foods. This includes milk. Some people cannot digest the milk sugar and it causes them a considerable amount of difficulty including gas, distention and related problems.

Coffee also is an irritant to the colon and even though drinking decaffeinated products helps there are a reasonable number of people who still get irritation of the digestive tract from the oils in the coffee that impart its flavor.

Thus, simply switching from regular coffee to a decaffeinated product will help some people but there are still others who must give up all forms of coffee.

IT IS ENTIRELY true that some individuals will learn by experience that there are certain foods that they can't tolerate and all of these, of course, should be avoided. This may mean taking vitamin pills to make sure that there is no vitamin deficiency. People who can't tolerate milk will need to consider obtaining calcium supplements.

In letters from readers I detect there is some confusion on the use of raw fruits. While they may be irritating to some people who have an overactive colon which is one form of colitis, they are helpful for individuals who have the constipation colitis. Raw fruit and even some cooked fruit, for example prunes, often help in maintaining good bowel function.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "We have had a lot of requests to do another series of articles on the squeeze play."

Jim: "Let's do it. The squeeze is a play in which you make it impossible for your opponets to keep protection in two or three suits by playing out high cards in the others. In general the squeeze is used to bring in one extra trick although some squeezes do even better."

Oswald: "Here is a very simple squeeze. Anyone who stops at six notrump has no worries about his contract. He starts with 12 winners. A match point player will go after the overtrick on the theory that an overtrick is always worthwhile."

Jim: "Change the East-West hands around and if declarer just cashes dummy's winners there will be a simple squeeze against East. There doesn't appear to be any squeeze against West, since Sest sits in back of South but South can handle West's case almost as easily."

Oswald: "It just requires that South cash his tricks in the right order. He wins the spade lead; takes his ace and king of hearts and now runs off dummy's winners to come down to the nine of hearts and seven of spades in dummy and ace-small of spades in his own hand. West is squeezed just as surely as if he had to play before South."
